10. ATTENDANCE VERIFICATION
Group Setting	When participants are seated together in a group setting, attendance is often verified by using a sign in/sign out sheet. A sample is available on the CLE website. If you create your own sign in/sign out sheet, please note that it should include: the name of the program, the date, the location (city/state) and the start/end times. If you have a sign in sheet, without a sign out , please be sure to explain how you will be able to verify there were no early departures. (For multi-day and/or multi-session programs, a separate sign in/sign out sheet may be needed for each session to verify attendance.)
Individual Dial In/Log In/ Self-Study	When there is individual participation (such as when an attorney individually dials in or logs in to a teleconference or webconference from a remote location such as from home or a private office, or individually views/listens to a prerecorded program), attendance is often verified by way of course codes. (A separate code should appear and/or be announced at least every 50 minutes during a program.) Please note that an attendance verification procedure that relies on the log in/log out times of attorneys who dial in or log in to a teleconference, webconference, webcast, etc., does not meet New York’s accreditation standards.
Sample forms (including a sample sign in/sign out sheet and a sample affirmation with course codes) are available on the CLE website at: www.nycourts.gov/attorneys/cle/attendance_verification.shtml .

Please check here to confirm that you understand that, as the sponsor of the program, you are required to verify attendance:	Please check: [<input type="checkbox"/>]

A printed copy of the complete set of written materials distributed to attendees must be included with your application. 12. PRESENTATION SLIDES
