WHAT IS THE SMALL CLAIMS COURT?

The Small Claims Court is an informal court where individuals can sue for money only, up to $5,000.00 without a lawyer.

For example, if you feel that a person or business damaged something of yours, you may sue that person or business for the monetary amount of your damages. You also may sue a person or business for money damages arising out of a dispute over a contract. You cannot, however, sue in Small Claims Court to compel that person or business to fix the damaged item or require the performance of the act promised in the advertisement. Your lawsuit can be only for money.

The Small Claims Court in the City of Buffalo has Jurisdiction over Defendants with Erie County Mailing Addresses only.

Claims against the City: You must first file a notice of claim with City Hall. If the City denies your claim they will mail you a denial letter. Bring the denial letter to the Small Claims office and you may then file a claim.

Claims against the County: You must first file the claim with the County Attorney's office. If your claim is denied bring the denial letter to the Small Claims office and you may file a claim.

The Small Claims Court in the City of Buffalo cannot accept claims against State or Federal Agencies.

WHO CAN USE THE SMALL CLAIMS COURT?

Anyone over 18 years of age can bring an action in Small Claims Court. If you are younger than 18, your parents or guardian may file the claim for you. Corporations, partnerships, associations, or assignees cannot sue in Small Claims Court, but they can be sued.

If you sue in Small Claims Court, you are the claimant (plaintiff); if you have been sued, you are the defendant. You can sue more than one defendant in the same case if necessary.

If you are sued, and you believe that a third party is responsible for the claim, you may be able to bring that party into the lawsuit as a defendant. Contact the clerk of the Small Claims Court for information about a "third-party action."

If you choose, you may be represented by an attorney at your own expense, but it is not necessary to have an attorney since Small Claims Court is meant to be a "people's court" where claims may be tried speedily, informally, and inexpensively. The defendant has the same choice.

Appearance by non-attorney representatives: The court may permit, upon the request of a party, that a non-attorney representative, who is related by blood or marriage to such party, be allowed to appear on behalf of such party when the court finds that due to the age, mental or physical capacity or other disability of such party that it is in the interests of justice to permit such representation. No person acting as a non-attorney representative shall be permitted to charge a fee or be allowed to accept any form of remuneration for such services.

WHERE ARE THE SMALL CLAIMS COURTS LOCATED?

There is at least one Small Claims Court in each of the 62 counties in New York State, including at least one in each of the five boroughs of New York City. In the City of New York, the Small Claims Court is part of the Civil Court of the City of New York. In Nassau and Suffolk Counties, the District Courts have Small Claims Parts. All city courts have a Small Claims part. Town and Village Court, with exception of those located in Nassau County, handle Small Claims in the municipalities where they are located. Consult your telephone book for the address and phone number of your local court and call that local court for information. This pamphlet refers to the procedures in Buffalo City Court's Small Claims Court only, located at 50 Delaware Avenue, Buffalo, New York 14202. Phone: (716) 845-2663.

HOW DO I START A SMALL CLAIMS CASE?

You, or someone on your behalf, must come to the Small Claims Court to fill out an application for Small Claims.

You should be prepared to give a brief written statement of the facts that form the basis of your claim. Check any documents relating to your case for the relevant dates and names. If you are suing on a contract or for property damage, you may claim interest as well as money damages. You must sue in a court having Small Claims Court in an area where the defendant lives or works or has a place of business. Buffalo City Court has jurisdiction over defendants with mailing addresses in Erie County.

The application must be signed and dated by the party bringing the action, "Claimant", or a statement authorizing another to file on their behalf is required with the claimant's signature to file the claim.

You will be required to pay a filing fee of $15.00 if your claim is for $1,000 or less and a filing fee of $20.00 if your claim is more than $1,000.

When the claim is filed, the clerk will tell you when the case will be tried. The clerk will then send the notice of claim to the defendant by both certified mail and ordinary first class mail. The notice of claim tells the defendant when the case will be tried and gives a brief statement of your claim and the amount of money you are seeking. If the copy of the claim sent by ordinary mail is not returned as undeliverable within 21 days, the defendant is presumed to have received notice even if the claim sent by certified mail has not been delivered.

If the notice is not delivered by the post office, the court will set a new trial date and tell you how to arrange for personal service of the notice of claim on the defendant. Personal service may be made by any person (including a friend or a relative) who is 18 years of age or older, except that you or any other party to the action may not serve the notice of claim.

If the service of the notice cannot be made upon the defendant within four months of the date when the action was first started, the action will be dismissed without prejudice to your bringing the action at a later time.

A Small Claims case will not proceed to trial until the defendant has been served with a notice of claim.

MUST I KNOW THE DEFENDANT'S CORRECT NAME?

When filing a Small Claims case, the claimant must provide the name and address of the person or business being sued. If you do not know the correct legal name of the defendant, you can sue using any name under which the defendant does business. However, you should go to the office of the County Clerk in the county where the business is located to find out who owns the business and the legal name of the business. The County Clerk's office keeps a record of the names under which businesses are operated, otherwise known as "Assumed Names" The Erie County Clerk's Office is located at 92 Franklin Street, 1st Floor, Buffalo, New York.

If you discover the defendant's correct "legal" name before the trial date, return to the Small Claims Court and have the case papers changed to state the correct name of the defendant.

WHAT IS A COUNTERCLAIM?

Sometimes the defendant may have a claim against the claimant and may counter sue the claimant in the same case. This is known as a "counterclaim" and it can be made for up to $5,000 in money damages. The defendant must come to court prepared to prove the counterclaim. You have the right to reply to a counterclaim but are not required to do so.

The defendant is required to file his or her counterclaim with the court within five days of receiving your notice of claim and must pay the court a fee of $5.00 plus the cost of mailing the counterclaim to you. If the defendant fails to file a counterclaim within the five-day period, the defendant may still file the counterclaim at the time of the hearing, prior to any testimony being taken. The hearing officer then may either proceed with the trial or adjourn the trial for a short period of time. However, if the defendant did not file the counterclaim within the five-day period, the hearing officer must adjourn the trial to a later date if you so request.

If you receive notice of a counterclaim against you, contact the Small Claims Court to see what procedures you should follow. Be prepared to try both your own case and the counterclaim at the time of your hearing.

Any claim or counterclaim for more than $5,000 may not be brought to a Small Claims Court; it must be brought in another part of the court or in another court.

ADJOURNMENTS

Adjournments of Small Claims Court are discouraged. No adjournments can be made over the phone. The adjournment procedure for Buffalo City Court, Small Claims is as follows:

- 1. Obtain consent of all opposing parties advising our office of same, by letter or fax. Prospective adjournment dates can be obtained by calling this office.
- 2. Have someone appear on the court date at the time scheduled to request an adjournment on your behalf. This person must be over the age of 18. Hearing Officers will typically allow each side one adjournment.
- 3. Make a motion to the Special Term Judge for an adjournment by advising your opponent of your intent to appear in Special Term. Mail this letter to your opponent, and send a copy of the letter to Small Claims Court, giving them at least 8 days notice of the date you select. This date may be any day Monday thru Friday at 9:30 a.m. only. On the date of the motion you must appear in the Small Claims Office on the 1st floor to have the court file sent up to Special Term. Since the Special Term Judge changes monthly you must contact the Small Claims Office in order to determine the location of Special Term for the date your request is to be heard.

WHAT SHOULD I DO AT MY HEARING?

On the date set for trial, you should arrive at the court before the calendar of cases is called. If the claimant is late, the case may be dismissed if the defendant is late, a default judgment against the defendant may be granted.

When your case, is called, stand and state your name and tell the court whether you are ready to proceed with your case or whether you are requesting an adjournment.

The trial is a simple, informal hearing before a Hearing Officer.

WHAT IS A HEARING OFFICER?

In Buffalo City Court, your case will be heard by a Hearing Officer, who is an experienced attorney. Most of the Hearing Officers are Court Attorneys who research and analyze legal issues for the judges. Court Attorneys are employees of the Court System and as such, they are experienced handling Small Claims matters. Experienced attorneys in private practice also serve as Hearing Officers in Small Claims Court.

SHOULD I CHOOSE BINDING ARBITRATION?

If both parties agree, you may choose binding arbitration. What this means is that your case will be still be heard by the Hearing Officer, and he or she will apply the same law in deciding your case. However, the Hearing Officer's decision will be final and there can be no appeal or demand for Trial de Novo by either party. Both parties must sign Stipulation to Binding Arbitration prior to the hearing. (See Example on Page 14)

CAN I CHOOSE TO GO TO MEDIATION?

Yes. There are community dispute resolution centers, under contract to the courts, available in every county in the state. There is normally no charge or a small filing fee. Your case will be scheduled quickly at a time and place convenient to all parties. Matters are confidential and the process is voluntary. Mediation gives you ample time to present your position. You take responsibility to work together on possible solutions with the help of a professionally trained mediator. A written binding agreement can be drawn up by both parties. You can locate your nearest dispute resolution center by checking your telephone book or by obtaining at Small Claims Court the brochure on your local dispute resolution center. In Erie County The Better Business Bureau has a Dispute Settlement Center for mediation. They are located at 741 Delaware Ave. Buffalo, NY 14209 (716) 883-5050 ext. 200.

PREPARING FOR HEARING

1. Evidence

Before your hearing, you should gather all evidence necessary to prove your claim or your defense. Anything that will help prove the facts in dispute should be brought to court. This includes photographs, written agreements, an itemized bill or invoice that is receipted or marked "paid," written estimates of the cost of the service or repairs, a receipt for the purchase of an item or the payment debt, canceled checks, and correspondence. If you rely on estimates, two different written itemized estimates of the cost of the service or repairs are required. If possible, merchandise that is in dispute should be brought to court. Testimony, including your own, is evidence. Any witness whose testimony is important to your case may testify. This can be a person who witnessed your transaction or someone whose special knowledge and experience makes him or her an expert on the cost of the service or repairs that were provided or may be required. You may have to pay an expert witness for his or her time.

2. Subpoenas

If you are unable to get a witness to appear voluntarily, you may apply for issuance of a subpoena to the clerk of the Small Claims Court, who will give you the necessary information. A subpoena is a legal document that commands the person named in the subpoena to appear in court. An expert witness may not be compelled to testify by subpoena, but you may pay the expert witness for coming to court to testify.

You also may apply to the clerk of the Small Claims Court for a "subpoena duces tecum" which is a legal document that directs someone to produce a bill, receipt, or other written document or record you need.

You must arrange for service of the subpoena and the payment of a $15.00 witness fee and, where appropriate, travel expenses for the person subpoenaed. Except where the travel is entirely within a city, a subpoenaed witness is entitled to 23 cents a mile as travel expense to and from the court from the place he or she was served subpoena. Service of the subpoena may be done by any person (including a friend or relative) who is 18 years of age or older, except that you or any other party to the action may not serve the subpoena. 48 hours notice is required on Subpoena Duces Tecum and 24 hours notice is required on a witness subpoena.

HOW IS A HEARING CONDUCTED?

The claimant's case is presented first. After being sworn as a witness, the claimant will tell his or her version of the incident. All papers or other evidence should be shown at this time. When the claimant has finished testifying, the Hearing Officer or the defendant may ask some questions to clarify matters.

Other witnesses can be presented in support of the claimant, and they can also be questioned by the Hearing Officer or the defendant.

The defendant then will be sworn and tell his or her side of the story and present evidence. The defendant also may present other witnesses. The claimant or the Hearing Officer may ask questions of the defendant and the witnesses called by the defendant.

If you are suing a business, be certain to ask the defendant's witness the full and correct legal name of the business and the name of the person who owns the business. If the name of the business is different from the name you wrote in your notice of claim, ask the Hearing Officer to make any correction in the name on your notice of claim.

After all the evidence is in, the Hearing Officer will consider the evidence and render decision. The decision will be mailed to the parties within 7 to 10 days of the hearing. In rare cases, the decision may be announced immediately after the trial.

WHAT HAPPENS IF ONE PARTY DOES NOT APPEAR?

If the claimant does not appear in court when the calendar is called, the case will be dismissed. If the defendant does not appear, the Hearing officer will direct an "inquest" (hearing). That means that the claimant will go before the hearing officer to present evidence to prove his or her case without the defendant presenting any evidence. If the claimant's case is proved, a "default" judgment will be awarded against the defendant.

If a default judgment is granted because the defendant did not appear, or the case is dismissed because the claimant did not appear, the losing party may apply to have the case re-opened and restored for a hearing upon a showing of good cause. Application to re-open a default judgment and to restore a dismissed case may be obtained at the office of the small claims clerk. (See Examples on pages 16 & 17) The small claims clerk will then set a date when both sides are to return to court.

On the return date, the Hearing Officer will decide whether to re-open the case. However, both sides should be prepared for the hearing in the event the case is re-opened.

SETTLEMENTS

In a lawsuit, one of the parties must always lose. Although you believe you are entitled to win, the Hearing officer may rule against you. Therefore, parties to a Small Claims action are encouraged to settle their cases whenever possible. You should seriously consider a reasonable offer of settlement. You may contact Mediation Services available in your county to assist reaching a settlement in a case.

If the case is settled before the day of trial and the money has been paid, notify the clerk by mail or by fax with a written Notice of Settlement. You do not have to appear in court.

If a case is settled but the money has not been paid, or if settlement talks are not completed, the claimant may wish to appear in court so that the case is not dismissed and ask the Hearing officer for "adjournment pending settlement." A new date then will be set for the hearing. If the settlement does not work out, both parties should appear in court on the new adjourned date prepared for the hearing.

CAN I DEMAND A TRIAL DE NOVO IF I LOSE?

Any party who is not in default may demand a trial de novo. You must file a demand with the small claims clerk and serve it upon all opposing parties within 30 days after service upon you of the notice of filing of the Small Claims award, or if service is by mail, within 35 days. (See Example on Page 15) You cannot file for a trial de novo if you have signed a Binding Arbitration form. If you have agreed to Binding Arbitration you waive your right to a trial de novo. (see, SHOULD I CHOOSE BINDING ARBITRATION")

If you demand a trial de novo, it will be scheduled before a Buffalo City Court Judge. The Judge will conduct the trial in the same manner as if it were in the Small Claims Court, however, the award of the Small Claims hearing Officer will not be reviewed or admitted into evidence by the Judge.

CAN I APPEAL THE CASE IF I LOSE?

Only after a trial de novo before the Buffalo City Court Judge may you appeal your case to a higher court. Even then, technical mistakes made during the trial de novo are not grounds for reversal. The appellate court will consider only whether substantial justice was done. Very few Small Claims cases are appealed. The expense of appealing is rarely justified in a Small Claims action. Taking an appeal may require retaining an attorney. In addition, the party who is appealing must purchase a typed transcript of the trial proceedings from the court reporter, or from the court when audio recording of the trial is authorized. If no stenographic minutes were taken, the party appealing will be required to prepare a statement of what took place during the proceeding or, in some courts, the judge or clerk will write this statement. If a statement is used, the party who is not appealing will have the opportunity to offer changes to the statement. If you decide to appeal, you must file a notice of appeal and pay the required fee within 30 days after the judgment is entered. Consult the Small Claims clerk if you wish further information about starting an appeal.

The party appealing the judgment can temporarily prevent its enforcement pending the decision on the appeal. To do this, a bond or undertaking must be filed with the court to guarantee payment of the judgment should the party lose the appeal. If you receive a notice of appeal, you should call the court to find out if an undertaking has been posted: if not, you may take steps necessary to collect the judgment immediately, or you may wait until the appeal has been decided.

WHAT DO I DO IF I WIN?

If the claimant wins, the court will enter a judgment for a sum of money.

DISCLOSURE OF ASSETS

It is your responsibility to collect information on the defendant's assets in the event you receive a judgment in your favor and the defendant does not pay you. [See "How Can I Collect My Judgment?"]

HOW CAN I COLLECT MY JUDGMENT?

Winning a judgment does not guarantee you will collect.

The court provides some help in collection of judgments.. However, you must take the necessary steps to obtain payment of your judgment. After winning a judgment in your favor, you should try to contact the losing party to collect your judgment. If the defendant does not pay you, you may need the services of an enforcement officer - a City Marshal, Sheriff or a constable. You must provide this officer with the information needed to locate assets (money or property) of the defendant, and the enforcement officer then can seize those assets to satisfy your judgment. The enforcement officer may request mileage and other fees before he or she seizes the assets. In many circumstances, these fees later can be added to the original judgment amount you receive from the defendant.

Property that may be reached by an enforcement officer includes bank accounts, wages, houses or other real estate, automobiles, stocks, and bonds.

Contact the Buffalo City Court Marshal for more information on enforcing your judgment. (716) 847-8430.

LOCATING ASSETS

1. Information Subpoenas

If a Small Claims judgment has been entered in your favor, you may obtain an information subpoena from the Small Claims clerk upon payment of a $2.00 fee. If you request it, the clerk will assist you in the preparation and use of the information subpoena forms.

An information subpoena is a legal document that may help you to discover the location of assets of the judgment debtor (defendant). It is a legal direction to a person or institution to answer certain questions about where the assets of the defendant are located. The information subpoena may be served upon the judgment debtor and upon any person or corporation that you believe has knowledge of the judgment debtor's assets -- for example, the telephone company, landlord, or bank. Separate forms are used for service on the judgment debtor and service on any other person or corporation.

The person or corporation served with an information subpoena must answer the questions served with the subpoena within seven days of receipt.

The information subpoena, accompanied by two copies of a set of written questions and a prepaid addressed return envelope, may be served by ordinary or by certified mail, return receipt requested.

2. Bank Accounts and Wages

One simple way to improve the chances of collecting your judgment is to learn the name and address of the bank where the defendant keeps a savings or checking account. A way to do this is to look at the back of a canceled check you or a friend may have given to the defendant. With this information, the enforcement officer can seize money in the defendant's account and use the funds to satisfy your judgment.

Another way is to find out the name and address of the defendant's employer. If you sued an employed person, you may be able to collect your judgment out of his or her salary. To do this, the enforcement officer can serve an "income execution" on the judgment debtor. This execution requires the debtor to pay 10% of the judgment debtor's salary to you until the judgment is paid, provided the debtor's gross earnings are above a certain minimum amount set by federal law (currently $142.50 per week).

3. Real Property

If the defendant owns real property, you may be able to collect your judgment from its sale. The clerk will direct you to the proper office where you can check property ownership. You will have to obtain a transcript of your Small Claims judgment from the court and file it with the County Clerk. You then should consult a sheriff, who may conduct a sale at public auction. It is your responsibility to prepare the papers to sell the property. The sheriff, after deducting his or her fees and expenses, and after paying off any prior mortgage, tax liens, and judgments, will send the balance to you, up to the amount of your judgment, plus interest.

4. Personal Property

Your judgment can be paid from the sale of defendant's personal property, such as automobiles. Contact the enforcement officer for details of the expenses and fees required. It is your responsibility to prepare the papers required to sell the property.

If you give an enforcement officer the model, year, and license plate number as well as the location of the defendant's automobile, the officer can seize it, sell it at auction, and pay your judgment with the proceeds. You can check with the New York State Department of Motor Vehicles to learn whether the defendant owns an automobile (fill out form MV-15). You can also find out from the Department of Motor Vehicles whether a bank or finance company already has a claim against the defendant's car.

If the defendant has a large unpaid auto loan, a bank or finance company might be entitled to payment of the loan from the sale of the defendant's vehicle before your judgment can be satisfied.

OTHER ENFORCEMENT PROCEDURES

1. Claims Based on Motor Vehicle Ownership

If your claim was based on the defendant's ownership or operation of a motor vehicle, you may be able to have the Department of Motor Vehicles suspend the defendant's driver's license and auto registration until the judgment is paid. To take advantage of this procedure, you must have a judgment for over $1,000 that has remained unpaid for more than 15 days after it becomes final. Ask the clerk for details of this procedure.

2. Licensing Agencies

If the judgment debtor is engaged in a business that is licensed or certified, you may notify the appropriate state or local authority if the judgment remains unpaid 35 days after the judgment debtor receives notice of entry of the judgment. The failure to pay a judgment may be considered by the licensing authority as a basis for the revoking, suspending, or refusing to grant or renew a license to operate a business. At the end of this guide is a list of prominent licensing or certifying authorities and a description of the types of businesses each oversees. If the Small Claims arises out of the conduct of the defendant's business, the court will determine the appropriate licensing or authority for the defendant in your case.

If the judgment debtor is a business that the court finds to be engaged in fraudulent or illegal conduct, you have the right to notify the Attorney General and, if the business is licensed, the appropriate licensing authority as well.

3. Prior Unsatisfied Judgments

If a defendant has failed to pay three or more judgments despite having sufficient resources to pay them, you may be able to sue the defendant for triple damages. Check with the clerk to see if your defendant is listed in the index of unsatisfied judgments maintained by the court.

To request Triple Damages A new claim must be filed by the person seeking triple damages. The claim must contain information from the claimants judgment and two separate unpaid judgments of the same nature against the same defendant. If the amount of the triple damages exceeds the Small/Commercial limitation of $5,000.00 the claimant can either file the complaint in a higher court or lower their claim to the jurisdictional limit of Small Claims.
