Sandra Robbie (ROW-bee) is the Emmy-winning writer/producer of the PBS documentary Mendez vs. Westminster: For All the Children. Sandra grew up in Westminster and considers the promotion and celebration of Mendez to be her life's work. Through Sandra's efforts, Mendez has been honored at the White House, commemorated on a U.S. postage stamp, and featured in the Los Angeles Museum of Tolerance. Her film has been screened at Harvard, Stanford, the Smithsonian and hundreds of presentations across the United States.

Inspired by Mendez v. Westminster, Sandra has curated an historic tour in Old Towne Orange where folks can see that last standing Mexican School from the segregation era, a formerly segregated swimming pool and movie theater, as well the graves of Confederate and Union soldiers in Orange County. Sandra is also producing a social justice comedy showcase entitled "Sandra Robbie's Lady Parts" which debuted in OC in January 2020 and includes the topics of Mendez v. Westminster, LGBTQ and #metoo. She aims to this one-woman show on tour across America virtually, and then in-person after COVID.
