INTRODUCTION TO THE THIRD EDITION - - EXPEDITING ORDERS AND JUDGMENTS

Although Justices have the power to direct that an order or judgment be settled, the policy of the New York courts and of the Supreme Court, Civil Branch, New York County is that settlement of long form orders and judgments should be avoided whenever possible. That policy is set forth in Uniform Rule 202.8(g), which provides: "Unless the circumstances require settlement of an order, a Judge shall incorporate into the decision an order effectuating the relief specified in the decision." (Emphasis added)

This policy advances a number of important goals. It fosters the interests of our court by limiting the volume of paper that must be received, processed and disposed of and the complexity that these steps entail. This conserves the time of our Justices, Law Clerks and Court Attorneys, permitting them to concentrate on more substantive matters, and frees up Court Clerks for other important tasks. Avoidance of long form orders and judgments benefits litigants by eliminating a deeply frustrating form of delay. Before the First Edition of this Guide to the Form of Orders and Judgments was issued in 1994, attorneys practicing in our court often encountered extensive delays in having decisions that had been issued on motions translated into the formality of long form orders. The delay was particularly frustrating because one side would have already prevailed on the motion and yet been barred for a time from effectuating it by the formality of rendering the outcome in the language of an order. The policy relieves counsel of the burden of preparing and submitting proposed long form orders and judgments, the cost of which must be borne by the client or, indirectly, by the attorney.

Our experience since the issuance of the First Edition of the Guide has shown beyond dispute that the inclusion of orders in decisions does not tax Chambers; quite the contrary. First, it is usually very easy, requiring the expenditure of only a handful of words and two or three minutes, to turn a decision into a decision and order or judgment. The practice becomes habitual, and the language that is required to deal with the large majority of motions and judgments is comparatively simple and quickly becomes familiar. It is only necessary that we keep in mind a few general principles, which are set out in this Guide, and that, as needed, we consult the Guide and the Forms in Appendix B. These forms have been placed on a computer disk, which accompanies this Guide, so that the inclusion of the critical language in a short form decision (the “gray sheet”) or at the end of a formal memorandum opinion can be very easily achieved.

Second, a direction to settle an order imposes a toll upon Chambers, not today, perhaps, but certainly tomorrow. This is because the file in question will not reach Chambers with the proposed order or judgment for weeks at best. When the file does arrive, Chambers will be required, at least to some degree, to refresh its recollection about the details of the decision in order to decide with confidence what form of order or judgment to sign.

Thus, a matter should, whenever possible, be resolved by a short form order or judgment. The specific wording necessary to achieve the wishes of the court should be included either (i) on the “gray sheet” or (ii) in the concluding portion of an accompanying formal decision.

There is nothing wrong with directing the settlement of an order, and particularly a judgment, when it is necessary to do so. Settlement should be directed when the order or judgment is complicated, or when additional information is needed and has not been supplied by the parties. For example, unless the exact wording of permanent injunctive relief is clear from the moving papers, the court should direct the settlement of a formal judgment. If there is an issue, the lawyers for the parties can argue about the appropriate wording before the judgment is signed and entered. We should use the words “Settle order” or “Settle judgment” when settlement is truly necessary, but not, as was the case 20 years ago, reflexively, as a matter of routine.

To effectuate the goal of including orders and judgments in decisions, please use the accompanying disk, which contains the forms as they appear in Appendix B to this Guide. We are also providing an electronic file containing the identical forms incorporated into the format of the gray sheet. Blank gray paper for use with the forms in gray sheet format is available from the Supply Room on the 7th Floor at 60 Centre Street.

In addition to encouraging the issuance of orders and judgments as part of decisions, the Guide attempts to delineate what is and what is not a "final order." Chambers is required to mark the bottom of every gray sheet and the motion folder jacket to indicate finality or not. As explained hereafter, if the marking is omitted or done incorrectly, a case that should be recorded in the court's Civil Case Information System ("CCIS") computer as having been concluded may continue in "active" status in CCIS. This will burden the Justice's inventory, mislead the Justice later on, cause confusion for parties and clerks, and create unnecessary work for the court and Chambers.

The Guide is structured as follows:

- - Part I discusses general principles that will assist us to frame orders and judgments as part of our decisions.
- - Part II covers finality markings on gray sheets and motion jackets.
- - Appendix A discusses important and common motions and applications (in alphabetical order) and presents recommendations regarding orders and judgments in those instances.
- - Appendix B contains the Forms of common orders and judgments.
- - Appendix C contains an explanation of the very complicated subject of structured judgments (CPLR 50-A and 50-B) and a form of judgment under each Article.
- - This booklet contains a detailed Table of Contents, and a list of contents at the front of each chapter.

If we will only read this Guide and consult it as needed when drafting orders/judgments, we will be able, simultaneously, to reduce the volume of long form orders/judgments that counsel and parties must settle or submit, expedite litigation, minimize expense, limit the burden on our Chambers and staff, and produce orders/judgments that achieve the purposes of our Justices in technically sound language.

Orders and judgments in actions of course are not interchangeable. They serve different functions and therefore are crafted with different language. To avoid confusion it is important that each be framed accurately.¹

The following notes the main elements of, and relevant distinctions in, each type of document.

A. THE ORDER DEFINED

1. What is an Order?

An order is a formal determination of a motion. Every motion in an action is an application for an order (CPLR 2211) and every motion must terminate in an order, in short or long form (CPLR 2219[a]). The order must be in writing and, where it affects a motion made on papers, must contain certain elements, discussed below. Upon request of a party, the Justice must reduce any order or ruling (e.g., regarding deposition questions) to writing or otherwise cause it to be recorded, whether it be one made on written or oral application or sua sponte (Id.). The order must be entered and filed with the Clerk of the Court (CPLR 2220).

An order will contain formal determinations of the issues raised on the motion as explained in the opinion. The order will generally grant or deny the relief sought on the motion.² In resolving the merits of the motion, the order might direct the parties or a party to do certain things (e.g., produce documents or appear for a deposition by a certain date). The order might also direct the County Clerk to take certain action regarding the merits of the case, e.g., to enter a judgment that disposes of some or all claims in the case in a certain way. A second document is required that will actually effectuate the formal disposition of claims; that is, as we will see, the judgment. Where an order directs the County Clerk to enter a judgment, an attorney will prepare a judgment in conformity with the order and present it to the County Clerk, who will sign it and enter the judgment if it indeed conforms to the order. Even a motion for summary judgment on all claims that is granted in its entirety does not, in the strict sense, actually end the case; it generates an order directing the County Clerk to enter a judgment and it is the judgment that the County Clerk enters that constitutes the document that formally determines the final status of that case.

² An order could, though, be intermediate in effect: e.g., an order marking a motion off the motion calendar, directing the filing of additional papers, referring the case to a Justice who has a related case, or recusing the Justice. An order that does not dispose of the motion in full is usually referred to as an interim order.

An order may set forth directions to the County Clerk with regard to interest, costs, and disbursements, which are addressed hereafter.

An order may require action by the County Clerk (e.g., entry of judgment in favor of a party), a back office (e.g., directing the Trial Support Office (Room 158) to strike a note of issue), or both (e.g., an order directing consolidation of two cases pending in the court). Such an order should provide for service of a copy with notice of entry, by a stated deadline, upon the County Clerk, the back office or, where necessary, both.

2. The Role of the County Clerk

The court determines the rights of the parties. The Clerk of the Court, the County Clerk (CPLR 105 [e]), is a ministerial officer whose function it is to carry out the directives of the court regarding entry of orders and judgments. The County Clerk will enter a judgment when an order on a motion directs him to do so, or when the verdict of a jury or the directives of the court after trial (discussed hereafter) so require. The judgment must follow precisely the directives of the court.³ Entry of a judgment occurs when the County Clerk, after signing it, files it (CPLR 5016[a]). The County Clerk may also enter a judgment by authorization of law without a direction by a Justice in the case of certain defaults pursuant to CPLR 3215 (a) or upon confession (CPLR 3218).

³ Huot v Dworman, 13 Misc 2d 104, 173 NYS2d 58, 60 (Sup Ct 1958), affd 8 AD2d 829, 190 NYS2d 202 (2d Dept. 1959) (“Entry of a judgment is the ministerial act of signing and filing a statement of the pronouncement of the court, thus spreading it upon the record...”); Marc v Pinkard, 133 Misc 83, 230 NYS 765, 766 (Mun Ct 1928) (“The clerk of the court is a mere ministerial officer, who can only act upon the direction of the court, and must find authority in the decision in order to enter judgment. Hence the judgment must follow precisely the direction in the decision.”)

B. THE LANGUAGE AND FORM OF THE ORDER

1. Key Elements of the Order

The form of the order follows in a straightforward way from its nature. The order shall be in writing.

The order on a motion made on supporting papers (see CPLR 2219[a]) should set forth the following:

- - the court and county of the court issuing the order
- - the title of the action or proceeding
- - the nature of the paper
- - the index number⁴
- - an identification of the papers used on the motion⁵
- - “the determination or direction in such detail as the judge deems proper,”⁶ which may consist of a sentence or more on a gray sheet or the conclusion of a formal opinion attached to a gray sheet
- - the signature or initials of the issuing Justice
- - the place and date of the signature

2. Language of the Order

The order will customarily use the formulation “it is ORDERED that,” followed by the disposition, determination or direction made with regard to the issue or issues raised on the motion. If there are multiple decretal paragraphs (e.g., where there are multiple causes of action at issue) the phrase “and it is further ORDERED that,” will introduce each successive paragraph. In the alternative, the order may state “it is ORDERED that:” followed by a series of paragraphs containing the various dispositions, determinations, and directions. An order may state, for example:

⁴ CPLR 2101(c).

⁵ In a long form order this will be done by a recitation that describes the papers submitted. Where the order is incorporated in a gray sheet or in a formal opinion accompanied by a gray sheet, the gray sheet, which contains spaces for this purpose, may be used to identify by number the papers considered on the motion. See Chapter 7 of Part I for further information on identification of papers.

⁶ CPLR 2219 (a).

It is hereby ORDERED that the defendant shall appear for a deposition on July 10, 2010, at 10 AM at the office of the plaintiff.

Or it might direct that action be taken by the Clerk regarding the merits:

It is hereby ORDERED that the plaintiff's motion for summary judgment is granted and the defendant's motion for summary judgment is denied; and it is further ORDERED that the Clerk shall enter judgment in favor of plaintiff in the amount of $ 100,000, with interest as calculated by the Clerk at the rate of 10% from January 15, 2008, plus costs and disbursements as taxed by the Clerk upon the submission of a proper bill of costs.

3. Decisions on the Record

A Justice may determine a formal motion on papers on the record and sign a gray sheet reciting, in substance, that the motion is granted or denied to the extent, and for the reasons, set forth on the record. Although this procedure can create difficulties from an administrative perspective and thus should not be employed routinely (ordinarily, the need for unusual expedition is involved), given the liberality of CPLR 2219 (a), such a gray sheet would constitute the short-form order of the court. The record would contain the opinion.⁷ Pursuant to directive of the Administrative Judge, Chambers should await receipt of the transcript from the court reporter and annex it to the gray sheet before forwarding the motion file to the Motion Support Office. The transcript will be produced promptly. The transcript needs to be annexed to the gray sheet so that the record will be clear and complete, the County Clerk's file will be complete, and the decision and order in full will be included in the Supreme Court Records On-Line Library.

The Administrative Judge has suggested that the court, when dictating a decision on the record, include a conclusion section at the end containing ordering provisions addressed to each cause of action at issue on the motion and each party involved, paralleling what is done with formal opinions and short-form decisions and orders. This will promote clarity and therefore assist the County Clerk to carry out correctly the intentions of the court.

C. THE JUDGMENT DEFINED

1. What is a Judgment?

A judgment is "the determination of the rights of the parties in an action or special proceeding and may be either interlocutory or final." CPLR 5011. A judgment is directed to the ultimate claims in a case and is the document that formally resolves them. In general, it is the judgment, not an order, that is docketed by the County Clerk, thereby creating a lien on real property.

There can be a judgment awarding money or dismissing claims, a declaratory judgment (CPLR 3001), i.e., one that declares the rights and other legal relations of the parties, a judgment specifically enforcing contractual rights, partitioning real property, dissolving a marriage, or determining a special proceeding, among other things. A permanent injunction is a type of final judgment.⁸

A final judgment, of course, resolves all issues. An interlocutory judgment leaves some open for subsequent determination or requires that certain steps be pursued before a final judgment can be entered. A judgment that determines certain issues, but provides that an account be taken is an example of an interlocutory judgment.⁹ If all issues are not resolved, there is usually nothing to be gained by entry of an interlocutory judgment. Thus, the interlocutory judgment is a rarity, but it may have utility, for example, where a trial is bifurcated into liability and damages phases.¹⁰

2. Orders and Judgments - Avoiding Misuse of the One for the Other

A judgment should not be used in an effort to achieve the purposes of an order, and vice versa. If the court does not decide the ultimate merits of the case in their entirety, or decide at least some of the ultimate merits and sever them from the rest of the case, the court should not sign or direct the signing of a judgment.

The court should not, for instance, issue an opinion on a motion directing the addition of a certain person as a party, or permitting amendment of the complaint, or changing the venue of a case and call the opinion "the decision and judgment of the court" or direct the Clerk "to enter a judgment accordingly." The use of the word "judgment" in these contexts would be erroneous since no disposition of the merits, or part thereof, is being made.¹¹ The judgment will typically include the words "that plaintiff have execution therefor." These words should not appear in an order since execution applies only to money judgments, which finally resolve all or part of a case.

The "judgment" must also be distinguished from the decision or opinion of the court, which provides the rationale for judicial action on a motion or after a non-jury trial.

3. Generally, There is One Judgment Per Case

In general, there can be only one document determining the rights of the parties, that is, there can be only one final judgment in a case. An important qualification to this statement is this: there can be more than one judgment if the claims are split into separate pieces by the court, that is, severed one from the other (see CPLR 603 [severance of claims or separate trial], 407 [severance of claim or party in a special proceeding]), in which event there can be only one judgment resolving each piece.¹² CPLR 5012 provides that the court “having ordered a severance, may direct judgment upon a part of a cause of action or upon one or more causes of action as to one or more parties.” The pieces cannot overlap or duplicate one another.

It should be noted, however, that an order that directs the payment of money, including motion costs, or affects the title to, or the possession, use or enjoyment of, real property, shall be docketed as a judgment at the request of any party. CPLR 2222.

D. THE LANGUAGE AND FORM OF THE JUDGMENT

1. The General Form of the Judgment

The required form of the judgment is set forth in terms of some generality in CPLR 5011: the judgment must refer to, and state the result of, the verdict or decision, or recite the default, upon which it is based. It is a matter of considerable importance -- to the parties, to the efficient operations of the court, and to the Appellate Division should an appeal ensue -- that the judgment be as clear as possible, with regard to every single claim, counterclaim, etc., and as to exactly what is being awarded, denied, or declared. This is discussed further below.

However:

No particular form of words is usually considered necessary to show the rendition of a judgment. The record of the judgment is sufficient if the time, place, parties, matter in dispute, and the result, with the relief granted, are clearly stated.¹³

¹² See Bennett v Long Island Lighting Co., 262 AD2d 437, 692 NYS 2d 144, 146 (2d Dept 1999); Marasia v Noyl Coram, Inc., 260 AD2d 607, 688 NYS2d 671 (2d Dept 1999); Conrad v. County of Westchester, 259 AD2d 724, 687 NYS2d 404 (2d Dept 1999); Kriser v Rodgers, 195 App Div 394, 186 NYS 316, 317 (1st Dept 1921); Donner v White, 149 Misc 709, 268 NYS 56, 59-60 (Mun Ct 1933). Another qualification to the general rule, a technical one, is as follows. A special proceeding brought to stay or compel arbitration must end in a judgment. If arbitration is directed, a later application to confirm or disaffirm may be made by motion in the same proceeding. CPLR 7502 (a) (iii). See discussion at p. 48 hereafter.

¹³ 10 Weinstein, Korn & Miller, ¶ 5011.04, at 50-95. “It is not necessary to the validity and effectiveness of a judgment ... that any technical phraseology be used by the court in its rendition ...” 8B Carmody-Wait 2d, Judgments § 63:12, at 214.

2. Key Elements of the Judgment

Though a particular form of words is not generally considered necessary, a judgment should contain or set forth the following:

- The court and the county of the court issuing the judgment (CPLR 2101 [c]);
- The full caption of the case (an abbreviated caption is not allowed in judgments (CPLR 2101 [c]));
- The nature of the document (“Judgment”) and the index number (CPLR 2101 [c]);
- The names and addresses of the judgment creditor(s) and the judgment debtor(s) where a money judgment is involved (CPLR 5018 [name and last known address required for purpose of docketing]);
- A reference to the verdict or decision that forms the basis for the judgment; and
- An adjudication of the rights at issue, that is, a clear, unambiguous statement of the award granted or denied by the judgment or declaration made thereby.¹⁴

A judgment should not contain findings of fact and/or conclusions of law,¹⁵ nor a statement of the theory or theories on the basis of which the award is made or denied.¹⁶

3. Language of the Judgment

The portion of the judgment that adjudicates or determines the rights at issue should generally use the formulation “It is ADJUDGED that,”¹⁷ and that is what we recommend. Attorneys often submit judgments using ¹⁴ Millner v Millner, 60 Misc 2d 122, 301 NYS2d 250, 256 (Sup Ct 1969). A New York court may enter a judgment only in United States currency (Judiciary Law § 27 [a]; 73 NY Jur 2d, Judgments § 17, at 35), except that, where the cause of action is based on an obligation denominated in a foreign currency, a court shall render or enter a judgment in the foreign currency, which shall be converted into U.S. currency (Judiciary Law § 27 [b]).

¹⁷ 73 NY.Jur 2d, Judgments § 16, at 34.

the formulation “It is ORDERED, ADJUDGED and DECREED that.”¹⁸ This choice of words, the product of habit, is not fundamentally deficient from a technical perspective, but it is not clear what the addition of the words “ORDERED” or “DECREED” generally accomplishes;¹⁹ in any event, the critical point is that the drafter not confuse the key function of the order with that of the judgment. The judgment should itself determine the rights involved, not direct the County Clerk to enter another document that determines those rights.²⁰ Confusion can probably best be avoided if the word “ORDERED” is generally limited to orders and if the words “It is ADJUDGED that” are used for judgments. Where a party seeks a declaratory judgment, it is appropriate that the judgment use the formulation “It is ADJUDGED and DECLARED that.”²¹

4. An Example of a Judgment

An example of a judgment (in this instance based upon a general verdict of a jury) is as follows:

CHAPTER 2 SIGNING OF ORDERS - MINIMIZING SETTLEMENT OR SUBMISSION OF LONG FORM ORDERS

CONTENTS OF THE CHAPTER

A. WHEN A MOTION IS DENIED - - SETTLEMENT ALWAYS UNNECESSARY

B. WHEN A MOTION IS GRANTED - - SETTLEMENT USUALLY UNNECESSARY

C. DEFAULTS ON MOTIONS AND SPECIAL PROCEEDINGS - - AVOIDING SETTLEMENT WHILE AFFORDING FINAL NOTICE/INTEREST AND COUNSEL FEES

As explained in the Introduction, the practice of this court, directed by Uniform Rule 202.8 (g), is that, unless circumstances require otherwise, an order shall be incorporated into the court's decision on a motion, either in a gray sheet or at the end of a formal opinion attached to a gray sheet. Settlement of an order is usually not necessary and therefore should be avoided.

A. WHEN A MOTION IS DENIED - - SETTLEMENT ALWAYS UNNECESSARY

In every instance in which the court denies a motion in an action, settlement of an order is unnecessary. In these instances, the court need only state as its order that the motion is denied. This can be done either directly on the gray sheet when the decision is a brief one, or by including such ordering language in a formal decision in a concluding sentence or paragraph (which may be marked "Conclusion" or state something such as "For the reasons stated above..."). The gray sheet or formal decision should say, in words or effect: "It is hereby ORDERED that the motion of _____ for _____ is denied."

B. WHEN A MOTION IS GRANTED - SETTLEMENT USUALLY UNNECESSARY

In most instances in which the court grants a motion in an action, a short form order will suffice. Certain kinds of motions do require particular directives in the order. As stated in the Introduction, Appendix A to this Guide contains, for many of the most common motions, recommendations as to how to handle them and Appendix B contains sample form directives to be used in framing short form decisions and orders or incorporating orders into formal decisions. Settlement can be avoided if the decision of the court includes, preferably at the end, the necessary ordering language. The language of these forms can be typed onto a gray sheet or a gray sheet can be generated from the accompanying computer disk. Also, these forms may be used in a formal opinion to frame a "conclusion" or final paragraph that summarizes the court's decision and that provides, in the necessary specific language and as an order, for the disposition of all aspects of the motion as desired by the court. When such a formal opinion is issued, the gray sheet on the motion should state that the motion is "resolved in the accompanying memorandum decision," or words to that effect.

A decision on a discovery motion should not require settlement of a long-form order absent extraordinary circumstances.²²

In some instances -- a small minority of the total -- the complexity of the directives necessarily flowing out of the granting of a motion in an action (as in a foreclosure action) may require the settlement of a long form order or judgment. The principal occasions on which a long form order or judgment is called for are identified ²² Many discovery disputes, moreover, should be resolvable without need for motion practice at all, which causes delay and expense for the parties. It is the court's policy to promote resolution of discovery disputes at conferences whenever possible. Where a drastic penalty will be imposed upon a party for failure to fulfill discovery obligations, prior notice must be provided to that party that such a sanction may be imminent. Postel v New York University Hospital, 262 AD2d 40, 42, 691 NYS2d 468, 470 (1st Dept 1999). It has been held that the penalty of striking a pleading should not be imposed at a conference, but rather should be founded upon a motion on notice. Boyle v City of New York, 269 AD2d 135, 701 NYS2d 896 (1st Dept 2000). In addition, a financial sanction may be in order in such a situation (see Postel supra, 262 AD2d at 42, 691 NYS2d at 471; Salamone v Wyckoff Heights Medical Center, 273 AD2d 117, 709 NYS2d 181 [1st Dept 2000]; Siegel, 92 Siegel's Prac Rev 2 [2000]). Where Part 130 is invoked, Section 130-1.1 (d) requires a written motion or a reasonable opportunity to be heard before the court may assess costs or sanctions against a party. The court may wish to include in a compliance conference order a directive that failure to comply with a particular discovery obligation by a stated deadline may or will lead to imposition of a specific penalty. See Garcia v. Juan Carlos Defex, D.D.S., 59 AD3d 183, 872 NYS2d 454 (1st Dept 2009); Alveranga-Duran v. New Whitehall Apartments, L.L.C., 40 AD2d 287, 836 NYS2d 24 (1st Dept 2007); Santoli v. 475 Ninth Ave Assocs., LLC, 38 AD3d 411, 833 NYS2d 40 (1st Dept 2007); Salamone supra, 273 AD2d at 117 n.l., 709 NYS2d at 182 n.l. See also Postel, supra, 262 AD2d at 42, 691 NYS2d at 470 (absence of any prior notice to plaintiffs that such a sanction might be imminent).

C. DEFAULTS ON MOTIONS AND SPECIAL PROCEEDINGS - - AVOIDING SETTLEMENT WHILE AFFORDING FINAL NOTICE / INTEREST AND COUNSEL FEES

Upon a default in a special proceeding or on a motion in an action, the court may consider directing settlement of an order or judgment solely for the purpose of affording the defaulting party final notice of the default and a last opportunity to take action. This procedure, however, is not the most efficient means of accomplishing that end. The court can achieve the same result, but save time and labor both for the prevailing party and court clerks by the following simple method: Issue an order on a gray sheet or at the end of an accompanying opinion and direct that the County Clerk enter a judgment on default on proof by affirmation of counsel that, for example, ten or 20 days additional notice was furnished to the defaulting party. Such an order might read:

ORDERED that the defendant's motion to dismiss the complaint is granted on default, and the Clerk is directed to enter judgment in favor of defendant dismissing the complaint in its entirety, with costs and disbursements to defendant, upon submission by affirmation of counsel of proof of service on plaintiff of a copy of this decision and order with notice of entry at least ____ days prior to the entry of said judgment.²³

Despite the general preference of the courts for the inclusion of orders in decisions, convenience and expedition may dictate settlement of an order when the defendant defaults on a motion for summary judgment or summary judgment in lieu of complaint and the plaintiff is seeking interest and counsel fees (e.g., in the case of a promissory note). The court can issue a gray sheet directing the clerk to enter judgment for the principal sum due, interest, and counsel fees in a specific amount. But in some cases, the precise basis for calculation of interest may not clearly appear in the motion papers or counsel may not adequately detail the work done and time spent to support an award of counsel fees in a particular amount. Rather than direct a time-consuming reference on interest and counsel fees (with or without a severance of the claim for the principal), the Court could direct settlement of a long form order that is to be accompanied by a detailed affidavit justifying the amount of interest and/or counsel fees. Then the court can sign an order directing entry of a judgment that will resolve all aspects of the case promptly and at one time.

²³ As to cases in which a defaulting party appears by counsel, it should be noted that many counsel will receive very expeditious notice of the issuance of the decision. This is because many attorneys today subscribe to lawyers' services that receive downloads of data from the court's computer system several times each day and that provide e-mail notice to counsel about new developments in cases listed with the service. The court system has its own such service, "E-Track," which is free of charge. Attorneys who subscribe to such services will be informed of developments generally the same day they are recorded in the court's computer or early the next day.

SIGNING AND ENTRY OF JUDGMENTS - THE ROLES OF THE COURT AND THE COUNTY CLERK

- C. JUDGMENTS IN SPECIAL PROCEEDINGS
- D. THE SIGNING OF JUDGMENTS AFTER JURY VERDICTS
- E. THE SIGNING OF JUDGMENTS IN NON-JURY CASES
- F. THE SIGNING OF JUDGMENTS ON DEFAULT OR BY CONFESSION

A. THE SIGNING OF JUDGMENTS IN GENERAL

All orders on motions are signed by the Justice. Judgments, however, as indicated above, need not be signed by the Justice. The County Clerk, acting ministerially, can sign the judgment where the Justice issues an order so directing (e.g., on summary judgment) or if a decision in a non-jury case specifies the particulars of a judgment and directs the Clerk to enter same. CPLR 5016 (a) provides that “[a] judgment is entered when, after it has been signed by the clerk, it is filed by him.”²⁴

B. THE SIGNING OF JUDGMENTS FOR EQUITABLE AND DECLARATORY RELIEF

With regard to judgments for money or costs only or for denial of relief, the County Clerk can and normally does sign the judgment.²⁵ However, the Justice must sign all judgments awarding equitable or declaratory relief, such as a permanent injunction or a judgment in an Article 78 proceeding reinstating a police officer. See CPLR 5016 (c), which provides that the Clerk shall enter judgment upon a decision by the court or a referee to determine as directed therein, but that when relief is awarded for other than money or costs only, the court or referee shall determine the form of the judgment. Thus, the court should not sign an order that directs the Clerk to enter a judgment awarding equitable or declaratory relief.²⁶

C. JUDGMENTS IN SPECIAL PROCEEDINGS

Every special proceeding that is not settled or withdrawn must end in a judgment, not an order. (CPLR 411) Judgments in special proceedings are signed by the Justice before they are entered by the Clerk. Whenever the court denies an application in a special proceeding (e.g., Article 75 proceeding), a decision endorsed on the gray sheet or appended thereto as a formal opinion will suffice as a short form judgment if the decision contains at the end the words: "it is hereby ADJUDGED that the petition is denied and the proceeding is dismissed." If the petition is granted, the gray sheet or formal opinion should at its conclusion, after the words "it is hereby ADJUDGED that," make whatever directives are required. Although a special proceeding comes on like a motion and looks like a motion, the application is a distinct proceeding which normally cannot and should not end in an order. Because a judgment is involved, provision for costs and disbursements may be included. There are only a few occasions when an order rather than a judgment will issue on Motion Seq. No. 001 in a special proceeding, including, for example, when the court directs a trial of a factual issue (CPLR 410), but these orders are interim steps and eventually a judgment will be required.

D. THE SIGNING OF JUDGMENTS AFTER JURY VERDICTS

A general verdict is one in which the jury simply finds in favor of a party (CPLR 4111 [a]); the determinations that underlie the conclusion are not stated: e.g., “we find for the defendant” or “we find for the plaintiff for $50,000.” A general verdict accompanied by interrogatories (CPLR 4111 [c])²⁷ is one in which the jury finds in favor of a party, determines the amount of damages, and answers questions about essential elements of the case (e.g., proximate causation). A special verdict is one in which the jury is required to find the facts, leaving it to the court to conclude which party is entitled to judgment thereon (CPLR 4111 [a], [b]). CPLR 5016 (b) provides that judgment on the general verdict of a jury after trial by jury as of right shall be entered by the County Clerk unless the court directs otherwise. But if there is a special verdict, the court shall direct entry of an appropriate judgment.

Thus, on a general verdict, the County Clerk will enter judgment without specific instructions from the court unless the court directs otherwise. Unless there is an inconsistency, on a general verdict plus interrogatories, the County Clerk shall enter a judgment based on the verdict. On a special verdict, the court shall direct the County Clerk how to enter judgment (CPLR 5016[b]).²⁸

The basis upon which the County Clerk will act in the case of a general verdict or general verdict with interrogatories is the extract. CPLR 4112 requires the Part Clerk to record a jury verdict in his/her minutes. The extract is a summary of the verdict taken from the minutes. It will provide the County Clerk with the information needed to enter a judgment in accordance with the general verdict.²⁹ The Part Clerk will transmit the extract to the County Clerk. The steps that are then taken to enter a judgment based thereon are described in Chapter 6

²⁷ Siegel, New York Practice § 399, at 673.

²⁸ 10 Weinstein, Korn & Miller, ¶ 5016.06.

²⁹ The extract should recite the identifying details of the case (full caption, index number, calendar number, Part number, Justice, trial dates) and the outcome. This shall include the outcome of all pretrial and trial motions that resolved claims, counterclaims, cross-claims, and third-party claims and the status of all parties. The extract should account for every claim and every party.

Part Clerks will not submit extracts when complex verdicts are involved; rather, the court will ordinarily direct settlement of a judgment instead.

E. THE SIGNING OF JUDGMENTS IN NON-JURY CASES

In decisions after trial by the court, the Justice will usually issue a written decision, which shall state facts deemed essential (CPLR 4213 [b]). If the court dictates a decision into the record, the court should obtain a copy of the transcript from the court reporter, who will produce it promptly and certify it, and the court should then sign it. The County Clerk will need this if directed thereby to enter a judgment. The court in framing its decision may also pass upon and incorporate, in whole or in part, findings of fact and conclusions of law as proposed by the parties (CPLR 4213 [a]). In non-jury cases, the Justice may either direct the County Clerk to enter a judgment in accordance with terms spelled out in the decision or direct settlement or submission of a judgment. In the former situation, of course, the decision must state clearly what is to be done by the County Clerk as to each claim, counterclaim, cross-claim, and third-party claim, interest, and costs and disbursements.

F. THE SIGNING OF JUDGMENTS ON DEFAULT OR BY CONFESSION

The County Clerk can also sign some judgments on default (CPLR 3215 [a]) or on confession of judgment (CPLR 3218), and in a few other situations defined by the CPLR.

CPLR 3215 (a) permits the plaintiff to obtain a judgment of default from the County Clerk if the claim is for “a sum certain or for a sum which can by computation be made certain.” This provision is construed narrowly so as not to infringe upon the prerogatives of the court. Examples that fall into the “sum certain” category are claims for breach of contract for failure to pay the agreed price of goods that were delivered, actions on money judgments, and actions based on instruments for the payment of money only.³⁰ (The last two actions will often be pursued through a motion for summary judgment in lieu of complaint [CPLR 3213]), and thus the Court would sign the order granting the default). Pursuant to CPLR 3215 (f), the applicant must present proof of service and proof by affidavit of the party of the facts constituting the claim, default and amount due. The Clerk is authorized to sever parties and thus the Clerk can enter a judgment against one of several defendants who defaults (CPLR 3215[a]). If the action is not for a sum certain or one that can be made certain, or if the action involves several claims one of which requires court intervention (e.g., severing a cause of action or awarding attorney's fees),³¹ or if the action seeks equitable relief, the Clerk cannot enter a default judgment. In those instances ex parte applications for a default judgment or an inquest should be submitted to the Ex Parte Office (unless the party wishes to or is required to (CPLR 3215[g]) proceed by motion on notice).³²

The two deficiencies in default submissions that are probably most commonly encountered by the County Clerk are the lack of a non-military affidavit and the failure to submit an affidavit reflecting second mailing (CPLR 3215 [g] [3] & [4]).

³⁰ Siegel, New York Practice § 293, at 477.

³¹ The Clerk is not authorized to sever causes of action or give attorney's fees.

³² Pursuant to CPLR 5003-a, if any settling defendant fails to pay sums due the settling plaintiff in timely fashion the settling plaintiff is entitled to enter judgment without notice, for the amount set forth in the release together with costs and lawful disbursements, with interest on the amount set forth in the release from the date the release and stipulation discontinuing the action were tendered (CPLR 5003-a[e]). This section is construed as authorizing the Clerk to enter such judgment on his own.

D. ORDERING PROVISIONS SHOULD BE PLACED IN A CONCLUSION SECTION AT THE END OF OPINIONS

Since the role of the Clerk in regard to orders and judgments is a ministerial one, the County Clerk is anxious not to trench upon the authority of the court. In order to achieve the correct and efficient implementation of the decisions and determinations of the Justice, it is vital that directions be given to the County Clerk with as much clarity as possible. A few simple, but important principles are involved.

A. AN ORDER/JUDGMENT MUST BE CLEAR AND COMPLETE

Every order/judgment signed by the court and sent to the County Clerk should be clear and complete so that the County Clerk can take the action intended by the court. The document should not be ambiguous, confusing or inconsistent about the claims and parties covered by it, and, as there are, of course, often multiple claims and parties in cases, it should address each specific portion of the case that the court intends to be affected thereby.

To promote clarity and completeness, it is recommended that when an order is being drafted at the end of a formal opinion or on a gray sheet, the drafter give careful consideration to the number and identity of parties and claims, counterclaims, cross-claims, and third-party claims in the case and those at issue on the motion. The order should be framed in such a way as to delimit precisely, by identifying the number of the cause of action and the name of the party, the action to be taken by the Clerk with respect to each party and cause of action at issue on the motion. In their briefs and affidavits the parties may refer to “the fraud claims” or “the affirmative defenses” and the body of the court’s decision at various points may for convenience use similar terms. But when it comes to the order, the claims or defenses must be specifically identified (e.g., the third, eighth and ninth counterclaims of defendant Elbridge Gerry) if the court wishes the Clerk to take any action in regard to them. The goal of the drafter should be to set out an order that a person not familiar with the case can carry out without uncertainty or possibility of error.

Similarly, the drafter should consider all the steps that would be required to carry out fully the court's intention. If those steps could be taken in different ways, the Clerk should be told how to take them. For example, it is not enough for a short form order to grant a motion to consolidate and direct consolidation of action A with action B. The Clerk needs direction as well as to what the new caption is, which index number the consolidated action shall proceed under, etc.

B. IF THE CLERK IS TO ENTER A JUDGMENT, THE COURT SHOULD SPECIFICALLY SO DIRECT

Similarly, so as neither to usurp, nor appear to usurp, the function of the court, the County Clerk will not enter a judgment unless expressly directed to do so by the Justice. It is recommended that an order not employ vague or precatory language, such as the Clerk "may enter judgment accordingly," or that "the plaintiff may have judgment," or state that "the defendant has prevailed on its defenses," or "the plaintiff is entitled to a judgment," or the like, nor should an order state only that "the defendant's motion for summary judgment is granted." Rather, the order should contain an unambiguous and unmistakable mandate, for example, that "the Clerk is directed to [shall] enter judgment for plaintiff James A. Garfield in the sum of $ _____," together with specific directives as to interest (including date and rate, as discussed below), costs and disbursements. If an order strikes some or all affirmative defenses, the Clerk will not assume that a judgment should be entered for the plaintiff for the amount demanded in the complaint. If an order strikes an answer, the court should make clear whether the Clerk is to enter judgment for plaintiff for the sum demanded in the complaint or whether there is to be an inquest, in which event, judgment would not be entered until after the inquest.³³

C. TO EFFECT ENTRY OF A JUDGMENT AS TO PART OF A CASE NOW, DIRECT ENTRY AND DIRECT SEVERANCE AND CONTINUANCE AS TO BALANCE OF THE CLAIMS

1. Generally, There is One Judgment Per Case

As indicated above, there should be only one final judgment as to the merits of a particular case except where the judgment is intended to resolve finally only part of the case, in which event the case and the judgment normally should be cut into pieces, that is, there must be a severance. Therefore, when an order finally disposes of some claims in a case, or entirely resolves the status of some parties, but other claims or parties remain and the litigation is to continue, the court, if it wishes judgment to be entered now as to the claims or parties disposed of, should sever those claims or parties from the case and direct entry of judgment. "The court, having ordered a severance, may direct judgment upon a part of a cause of action or upon one or more causes of action as to one or more parties" (CPLR 5012). CPLR 5012 applies to all claims, counterclaims, cross-claims and third-party claims.³⁴ CPLR 3212 (e) provides that the court may grant summary judgment as to one or more causes of action, or part thereof, in favor of any one or more parties, to the extent warranted, on such terms as may be just.

2. When Should A Severance Be Ordered ?

The decision whether to enter partial judgment now or await resolution of the entire case is a matter within the discretion of the court.³⁵ Professor Siegel says:

A judgment can determine the whole case or only part of it. It can determine one cause of action and leave others for later. It can even decide part of but a single cause of action, or give judgment as to some but not all parties.³⁶

“[W]ide discretion is accorded the lower courts in ordering severance and imposing conditions”³⁷ It may be appropriate to direct the County Clerk to enter a judgment now rather than await the final resolution of the case where doing so would advance the disposition of the case in some practical respect and would not cause injustice, hardship, or confusion.

Where the order frees a party or parties from the case: If several defendants move to dismiss the complaint in its entirety, but the court grants the motion only as to some defendants, the court might wish to direct the County Clerk to enter judgment in favor of the latter only since doing so ends their involvement in the case.³⁸ If the decision, on the other hand, disposes of some claims, but leaves all defendants in the case on claims involving the same alleged damages, there would be no practical benefit to directing entry of judgment now as to some causes of action.

summary judgment might sever one cause of action, direct the entry of judgment thereon and continue the remaining causes of action. Professor Siegel says that “[t]he needs of the particular case will dictate ...”³⁹ With regard to the discretion to make such determinations, “[t]he only limitation ... is that one or more causes of action should not be severed when the effect would be to leave the remainder of the action in a chaotic condition.”⁴⁰

“Whether judgment on part of a cause of action is appropriate in a given case is a question of practicality.”⁴¹ The standard that has been articulated is this: “Is it possible to divide the claims or cause of action so that an effective judgment can be rendered as to part, without mutilation of the whole ?”⁴² The objective of CPLR 5012 is “to provide an effective way of separating and leaving for independent adjudication two or more claims stated as part of one cause of action, as long as the severance is practical and can be accomplished without confusion ...”⁴³ If this test is met, and “some economic or other practical advantage will accrue, judgment on part of a cause of action should be freely granted.”⁴⁴

In Ivon R. Ford, Inc. v. Sutherland,⁴⁵ for example, the court held that no issues existed as to the validity of a lien and granted judgment as to validity, leaving the action to proceed as to the remaining issues, which involved priorities of other liens against the premises in question.

If the plaintiff asserts several causes of action on several unrelated loans, there are no counterclaims, and there are no issues of fact as to the causes of action for two of the notes involved, it might be in the interests of justice to grant a motion for summary judgment and direct entry of a judgment for the sums due on those two claims, while severing and leaving for future determination other causes of action as to which the defendant has raised an issue of fact (e.g., as to liability or whether the balance outstanding had already been paid).

If the plaintiff sues on a single note and the court determines on summary judgment that no issue of fact exists with regard to defendant's liability on the note for a particular sum and if there are no counterclaims, but the court has some concern about the proper sum to fix for the attorney's fees allowed by the note and claimed by the plaintiff, the court might grant summary judgment to plaintiff as to the principal amount due and direct entry of judgment therefor, but sever the claim for attorney's fees for further proceedings, for a hearing, a reference to hear and report, or perhaps the submission of further papers. In this situation there would not seem to be the prospect of confusion or disorder caused by the severance.

These examples illustrate considerations involved in the process of deciding whether to direct entry now: if part of the case is distinct from the rest and it would be unjust or burdensome to require a party to await a final resolution of all claims before obtaining a judgment on that part of the case, then a severance and a direction to the Clerk may be in order. Whether a party would be prejudiced is a factor.⁴⁶ "If severance and partial judgment will not adversely affect the trial court's ability to determine the remainder of the litigation and some advantage will be secured thereby, CPLR 5012 should be invoked."⁴⁷

If the counterclaim is separable from plaintiff's claims, summary judgment may be granted. Wolosoff v. Wolosoff, 54 AD2d 651, 387 NYS2d 638 (1st Dept 1976); 7 Jack B. Weinstein, Harold Korn & Arthur Miller, New York Civil Practice: CPLR ¶ 3212.17, at 32-209 (2d ed. 2009)[hereinafter cited as "7 Weinstein, Korn & Miller"]. Where a plaintiff is entitled to summary judgment on certain claims, and where there are unrelated counterclaims that must be decided, the plaintiff may be entitled to a severance and entry of summary judgment on the former claims if there would be no prejudice to the defendant, as where there is no evidence that plaintiff would be unable to pay a judgment should defendant later prevail on the counterclaims. See, e.g., Robert Stigwood Org., Inc. v

3. Form of Order of Severance

An order that dismisses in whole or in part a complaint, cause of action, counterclaim, crossclaim, or third-party claim and that directs a severance should:

- (a) state clearly what the disposition is as to the motion in question and as to the pleading in its entirety or as to identified claims;
- (b) if the order will resolve some, but not all, claims and/or the status of some, but not all, parties, and the court wishes judgment to be entered on the portions resolved, sever the remaining parties and claims from those being finally disposed of; and
- (c) direct the Clerk to enter judgment on the portions resolved, described precisely.

An order to the Clerk to enter a money judgment (e.g., on summary judgment) and directing a severance should

- (a) state clearly what the disposition is as to the motion in question;
- (b) identify the party or parties in whose favor judgment is to be entered and the party or parties against whom judgment is to be entered and sever the claims or parties that will remain in the case after entry of the judgment;
- (c) state
 - (i) the amount of the award,
 - (ii) whether interest is to be awarded and, if so, that the Clerk is to calculate it and See Siegel, New York Practice § 285. Under CPLR 3212 (e), the court is empowered to sever the remaining claims from a cause of action as to which summary judgment is granted or hold entry of summary judgment in abeyance pending determination of any remaining claim. Depending on the circumstances, a plaintiff may be entitled to summary judgment on a main claim, but if there remains a counterclaim for trial, the court could grant summary judgment to plaintiff, but stay entry thereof. Or if the main claim exceeds the counterclaim, the court could grant summary judgment, but stay entry as to the portion that would be offset if defendant were to prevail on the counterclaim. The court could also allow entry, but stay enforcement, which would give the party entitled to judgment a lien in the meantime. Id. at 468-69; 7 Weinstein, Korn & Miller ¶ 3212.17. Professor Siegel states, with regard to the effect a counterclaim has on the grant of summary judgment for plaintiff, that “it all boils down to a simple conclusion: the court can work out whatever seems fair in the particular case.” Id. at 468. See 7 Weinstein, Korn & Miller at 32-209 (“The court has broad discretion”).

- any particulars about how he is to do so, and
- (iii) whether costs and disbursements are to be awarded; and
 - (d) direct that the Clerk enter judgment for and against parties identified exactly as set out pursuant to (b) above.

4. A Note of Caution Regarding Certain Default Judgments

A note of caution should be sounded as to certain default judgments. The court should not direct entry of a default judgment against one of several defendants who are jointly liable (e.g., members of a partnership) where the case is supposed to continue because claims against all defendants will be merged in the judgment entered against one. If, however, the defendants are jointly and severally liable, or severally liable, the court may direct a severance and entry of a judgment against fewer than all defendants.⁴⁸

D. ORDERING PROVISIONS SHOULD BE PLACED IN A CONCLUSION SECTION AT THE END OF OPINIONS

Directions to the County Clerk in appropriate ordering language should not be buried in the body of a formal opinion, but, for the benefit of the parties and the County Clerk, should (as the County Clerk has specifically requested) be easy to locate, and preferably should be placed at the end of the decision, ideally in a section labeled "Conclusion" or "Conclusion and Order." The same should be done if a judgment is involved, as in the case of a formal opinion that resolves an Article 78 or Article 75 proceeding.

CHAPTER 5 INTEREST, COSTS AND DISBURSEMENTS

CONTENTS OF THE CHAPTER

A. INTEREST - - THREE CATEGORIES

B. COSTS AND DISBURSEMENTS

The following are key points regarding interest, costs and disbursements.

A. INTEREST - - THREE CATEGORIES

There are three categories of interest: interest (1) to verdict, report or decision (CPLR 5001); (2) from verdict, report or decision to entry of final judgment (CPLR 5002); and (3) from entry of final judgment until payment (CPLR 5003). Interest in the second and third categories shall be awarded as a matter of right on all money judgments, whereas interest in the first category is limited.

Category 2 (To Entry): As to the second category, CPLR 5002 directs the Judgment Clerk to compute the amount of interest and include it in the judgment. Because CPLR 5002 is mandatory, the Clerk will include such interest in the judgment even if the order of the court or the form of judgment signed by the Justice or submitted by counsel is silent on the matter. Since the lapse of time between verdict or decision and entry of judgment is generally brief, this category of interest will often prove of modest practical significance.⁴⁹ Normally (see discussion of the exception below), the rate of interest is the statutory rate, discussed hereafter.

Category 3 (From Entry): Interest in the third category runs from the date of “entry” of each money judgment. Because CPLR 5003 is mandatory and category 3 interest, by definition, does not arise until after the court has concluded action on the case, the order of the court or form of judgment need not include a direction as to such interest in order for it to be awarded. A judgment is “entered” when, after having been signed by the Clerk, it is filed by him (CPLR 5016[a]). Upon entry, the judgment will bear a County Clerk “filed” stamp reflecting the date of entry.⁵⁰ Here, too, the rate normally (an exception is discussed below) is the statutory one.

Category 1 (To Decision, etc.): As to the limits of category 1 interest alluded to above, this category is to be awarded as a matter of right in two circumstances and as a matter of discretion in a third. CPLR 5001 (a) provides that interest shall be recovered as of right on awards (i) for breach of contract, or (ii) based upon an act or omission depriving a person of, or otherwise interfering with, title to or possession or enjoyment of property. However, in an action of an equitable nature (e.g., a seller’s action for specific performance, a partnership accounting, a shareholder’s action for corporate dissolution, an action to foreclose on a defaulted mortgage), whether to award interest, and the rate and date thereof, shall be in the court’s discretion. Significantly, category 1 interest is unavailable on claims for punitive damages and in personal injury actions, though it is awarded from date of death in wrongful death actions pursuant to statute (EPTL 5-4.3).

In a contract or property damage case, the possible dates from which interest under CPLR 5001 shall be computed are set forth in CPLR 5001(b). In such a case, and in an equity case in which the court in its discretion decides to award interest, the court shall specify the date in the verdict, report, or decision (CPLR 5001[c]).

The statutory rate of interest is currently (and has been since 1981) fixed at 9% per annum unless a statute⁵¹ provides otherwise. As noted, the statutory 9% rate applies to interest from verdict, report, or decision to entry of judgment and from entry onward (categories 2 and 3). This rate also applies to interest from accrual (category 1) with some exceptions. The first exception is that, in equity cases, again, interest and the rate thereof are discretionary with the court. Second, parties may fix the rate by contract, which is often done. It is well ⁵⁰ Every order that directs the payment of money and that has been docketed as a judgment also bears interest on the judgment (CPLR 5003).

⁵¹ E.g., certain judgments against municipalities (Gen Mun Law § 3-a).

established that if a loan agreement or other contract or instrument provides that interest shall be paid at a particular rate until the principal debt is extinguished, then the rate agreed upon, rather than the statutory rate, will govern.⁵²

Indeed, notwithstanding CPLR 5002 (category 2), if the contract rate provides as much, the contract rate will govern, various authorities hold, after default and until the entry of judgment, when the contract is merged in the judgment.⁵³ There is even authority that, if the contractual language unambiguously and unequivocally so states, the contract rate will apply after entry of judgment (CPLR 5003 [category 3]) and until satisfaction.⁵⁴

In a contract case in which there has been no agreement about a rate of interest and in a property damage case, then, the statutory rate applies to category 1 interest.

An order should make clear to the County Clerk whether there is to be interest to verdict, report or decision (category 1) and, if so, how he or she is to calculate it. If such interest is to be awarded (because there has been a breach of contract or property damage, or because in a case of an equitable nature the court in its discretion decides to award it), there are several approaches to the rate: (i) interest at the statutory rate (for property damage cases, contract cases lacking an agreed rate, and, in the court's discretion, some equitable cases); (ii) at the contract rate if one has specified; and (iii) in some equitable cases, at another rate in the court's discretion.

(1) Statutory Interest: The court should specify in the order that the Clerk enter judgment in the amount of $ _____ “with interest at the statutory rate from _____, 20 ____ until entry of judgment, as calculated by the Clerk,”

(2) Contract Rate: The court should specify in the order that the Clerk enter judgment in the amount of $ _____ “with interest at the rate of ____% from _____, 20 ____ until the date of this decision and order, and thereafter at the statutory rate until entry of judgment, as calculated by the Clerk, ...” If the contract language clearly so provides, the order should specify that the category 1 interest run “until entry of judgment, as calculated by the Clerk” or “until satisfaction of the judgment, as calculated by the Clerk,....”

(3) Equitable Case Rate: The court should specify in the order that the Clerk enter judgment in the amount of $ _____ “with interest at the rate of ____% from _____, 20 ____ until the date of this decision and order, and thereafter at the statutory rate until entry of judgment, as calculated by the Clerk,”

Of course, the Justice must fill in these blanks in order to enable the County Clerk to calculate in accordance with these directions the dollar amount of the interest on the main sum and include the interest figure in the total amount of the judgment awarded and to be entered by the Clerk.

Counsel may at various places in papers submitted refer to the principal, interest on the principal up to a certain date, or the two sums combined. When framing the order, staff need to be alert not to use the last of these and also direct that interest on that same sum be provided from date of accrual, thereby providing for category 1 interest on category 1 interest.

Where there are any possible questions about the calculation of interest or an unusual rate is involved, counsel will be well-advised to provide the County Clerk with an affidavit and any necessary supporting documentation to assist the County Clerk in making the calculation.

B. COSTS AND DISBURSEMENTS

As to costs and disbursements, these consist of particular fees paid (such as the index number fee) and specified expenses for which a party may be reimbursed (see CPLR Article 81).

Costs. The party who obtains a favorable judgment is entitled to costs in the absence of a statutory directive or court order otherwise (CPLR 8101). The court may deny costs if it is of the view that an award would be inequitable. In the case of multiple prevailing parties, absent order otherwise, they shall be entitled, in toto, to a single set of costs (CPLR 8105). If the court dismisses a case against a group of defendants, it should consider whether it wishes the plaintiff to pay a single set of costs or separate costs to each defendant. Departure from the general provisions of CPLR Article 81 requires an explicit direction from the court to the County Clerk (CPLR 8108). The costs allowed are set out in CPLR Article 82.⁵⁵

Disbursements. The party to whom costs are awarded is entitled to disbursements, which are certain defined expenditures (CPLR 8301 [a]). This section also allows a party who is not awarded costs to recover disbursements in certain circumstances (CPLR 8301 [c]). Subdivision (a) lists these allowable expenses, which can include such things as publication fees, certification fees, title search expenses, and the prospective charges for entry and docketing of the judgment. Deposition expenses, which, of course, can be very substantial, are included in this list, but the allowable expenses therefor are capped at only $250 in any one action. The subdivision also authorizes recovery of other expenses where they are reasonable and necessary and are taxable according to “the course and practice of the court,” by law or by order of the court (CPLR 8301 [a] [12]). The course and practice of the court dictate what counsel need to submit as documentation in support of some disbursements (e.g., steno bills, publishing invoices). The County Clerk can provide information about “the course and practice of the court.” The sheriff’s poundage fee (CPLR 8012 [b]) is not an allowable disbursement, but is the responsibility of the debtor.⁵⁶

Additional Allowances. Additional allowances are authorized in certain actions by CPLR 8302 (e.g., real property foreclosure or partition actions) and 8303. The latter permits the court, inter alia, to award up to $3,000 to a party in a difficult or extraordinary case where a defense was interposed.

Procedure before the Clerk Regarding Costs and Disbursements: Subject to any particular judicial directives regarding costs and disbursements as explained above, the order should provide that costs and disbursements will be taxed by the Clerk upon presentation of a proper bill of costs. The attorney will then submit to the Judgment Clerk a bill of costs listing the costs and disbursements for which recovery is sought, together with affidavits supporting the requests as necessary and appropriate, and the Clerk will review the bill and "tax" it, that is, will exclude therefrom items that are not properly included and will check the math involved, arriving at a sum that is included by the Clerk in the judgment. If the Justice signs a judgment, spaces for costs and disbursements should be left blank, to be computed and filled in by the Clerk.

Costs and Disbursements in Judgments in Special Proceedings: In a special proceeding, the gray sheet and any accompanying formal opinion will usually constitute a decision and judgment, and therefore should incorporate language proper thereto (“it is hereby ADJUDGED that”). If the court wishes to award costs and disbursements - - and, as noted, the prevailing party is entitled thereto unless the court determines otherwise - - the court should include adjudicatory language in the conclusion of the decision and judgment, such as the following: “it is ADJUDGED that the petition is denied and the proceeding is dismissed and that respondent, having an address at _____, do recover of petitioner X, having an address at _____, costs in the _____

A. SETTLEMENT AND SUBMISSION OF LONG-FORM ORDERS AND JUDGMENTS

1. “Settle Order” and “Submit Order” Distinguished

If the court decides that a long form order is essential on a motion, it will generally choose one of two procedures for the presentation of the proposed order - - a direction to “settle order” or a direction to “submit order.” A direction to “submit order” means that the prevailing attorney shall prepare an order in conformity with the decision and present it to the court without prior submission or notice to the adversary; if the order is signed and the adversary disputes its contents, he or she can make a motion to resettle the order after it has been amount of $ _____ and disbursements in the amount of $ _____, making in all a total of $ _____.”

The court should leave the spaces blank, which will be completed by the Court Clerk. The court should not write “with costs and disbursements as taxed by the Clerk” or “the Clerk is ordered to award costs and disbursements to Y” since the document in which the words are being written is the judgment itself and the latter two examples are proper for an order, but not a judgment.

served. The direction to “settle order,” which is intended to address more complicated situations,⁵⁷ means that the prevailing attorney should work out with the adversary a proposed draft order that conforms to the decision. If the parties agree, the order will normally be signed without difficulty. If the parties disagree, the prevailing party will then present to the court a proposed order and the adversary will normally present a proposed counter-order. Correspondence may be submitted in support of the proposals. The mechanics by which these submissions are made are set out in Uniform Rule 202.48.⁵⁸

2. How Proposed Long-Form Orders and Judgments Are Presented

When settlement of an order is directed, notation of the decision is made in CCIS and the file is transmitted to the Order Section of the Motion Support Office (Room 119) or the Commercial Division Support Office (Room 148) (in Division cases). The settlement process - - the settlement of a proposed order and a proposed counter-order, if any - - takes place there. Rule 202.48 (c) specifies where the return of the proposed order and counter-order is to be noticed and what service provisions apply. The proposed counter-order must note the respects in which it differs from the proposed order (id.). No appearance takes place on the settlement date; this is merely a deadline. After the deadline passes, the court clerk in the Order Section or the Commercial Division Support Office will review the submissions presented there and transmit them with his or her comments or suggestions to the Justice, unless there is some defect in the papers (e.g., no proof of service), in which event

⁵⁷ Siegel, New York Practice § 250, at 426.

⁵⁸ Id.; Siegel, McKinney’s Practice Commentary, CPLR 2220, at 108 (Supp. 2010). See also Funk v Barry, 89 NY2d 364, 653 NYS2d 247 (1996) on the differences between these two directions. A direction to “submit order on notice,” Professor Siegel says, probably is intended to mean “settle order,” since, as stated, the use of the word “submit” connotes presentation without prior notice to the adversary. Siegel, McKinney’s Practice Commentary, CPLR 2220, at 170 (1991). See Funk, 89 NY2d at 367, 653 NYS2d at 249 (the “submit” procedure “typically calls for no notice to the opponent,” in contrast with a direction to “settle order”). See also Siegel, Siegel’s Practice Review No. 52, at 3 (Dec. 1996)(discussing a case in which a direction to submit on notice was used, causing confusion). Professor Siegel writes that Section 202.48 (a) itself muddies the waters by referring to an order “directed to be settled or submitted on notice.” He states that “the rule should reverse the ‘settled’ and ‘submitted’ so that the ‘on notice’ phrase modifies only the settled.” Id. In the interest of avoiding confusion, therefore, it is suggested that the term “submit order on notice” not be used.

the clerk will inform counsel.⁵⁹

If the court's decision directs a party to "submit" an order, the party should prepare the required order and present it to the relevant back office. As indicated, counsel need not serve the proposed order on the adversary. The clerk will review the proposed order and transmit it to the Justice with any comments or suggestions deemed appropriate.⁶⁰

3. Deadline for Presentation

Rule 202.48 (a) provides that proposed orders must be presented for signature, unless otherwise directed by the court, within 60 days from the signing and filing of the decision directing that an order be settled or submitted. Failure to do so in a timely manner shall be deemed an abandonment of the motion or action unless good cause is shown (Rule 202.48 [b]).⁶¹ It is important for Chambers to be aware of these provisions since abandonment is potentially involved and there may well be disputes about good cause for late submission. Also, an attorney might be tempted to try to revive a short-form order by submission of a long-form order granting or denying the same relief, with possible appellate implications.

⁵⁹ Notice of defects is provided to counsel to assist counsel and the Justice. If there is a defect, counsel may well be interested in knowing about it before the papers are presented to the Justice rather than learn of the problem when the Justice rejects the submission. Pursuant to court policy, however, the clerk does not "reject" papers unless a statute or rule specifically so requires (CPLR 2102 [c]). See Uniform Rule 202.5 (d). If counsel insists that the papers be transmitted to the Justice in the form in which they were presented, the clerk will do so, although he or she may inform the Justice of what the perceived problems are.

⁶⁰ The court, on rare occasions, may direct that an order be settled or submitted directly to the Part or Chambers of the Justice. In such a case, the attorney of course must comply.

⁶¹ In Funk, the Court of Appeals clearly held that the 60-day deadline applies any time a court "expressly directs a party to submit or settle an order or judgment." 89 NY2d at 367, 653 NYS2d at 249. The Court pointed out that "the rule serves primarily to address delays in judicial dispositions occasioned by a party's failure to comply with a court's directive to draw and submit a proposed order or judgment." Id. at 368, 653 NYS2d at 249.

4. Submissions Must Be Faithful to the Decision

Counsel who settle or submit a proposed order or settle a proposed counter-order must endeavor to incorporate in the document accurately and completely the precise directives set out in the court's decision and include nothing else therein. As Professor Siegel says, "[a]ny order drawn must of course be faithful in all respects to the decision"⁶²

5. The Procedures Apply to Judgments

When necessary, the court may include in a decision a direction that a judgment be settled or submitted. The same steps are followed as with proposed orders, and Rule 202.48 by its express terms applies.

B. HOW JUDGMENTS ARE ENTERED

If the court has issued an order directing the Clerk to enter judgment or if there is an extract from the Clerk's minutes reflecting a general verdict, with or without interrogatories, or upon a default under CPLR 3215 (a) or a confession of judgment, the prevailing party will prepare a form of judgment and submit it to the Judgment Clerk (Room 141B in the basement of 60 Centre Street), together with information supporting interest calculations, if relevant, including an affirmation if needed, and a bill of costs itemizing costs and disbursements. The attorney will appear in person to assist the Judgment Clerk with regard to interest calculations, to answer any questions the Judgment Clerk may have, and to help create the judgment roll (CPLR 5017), which requires a review of the County Clerk's case file.⁶³ If the judgment is in proper form and in conformity with the order or verdict, the Judgment Clerk will calculate interest, if any, and tax costs and disbursements, include these figures in the judgment, and sign it.⁶⁴ A judgment roll will be created.

⁶² Siegel, McKinney's Practice Commentary, CPLR 2220, at 170 (1991).

⁶³ In matrimonial cases, the County Clerk will enter the judgment on his own, without an appearance by counsel. In electronically-filed cases, a personal appearance is not required; instead, applying counsel shall submit via the e-filing system a Request for Entry of Judgment, a form available on the website of the e-filing system.

In the case of a special proceeding, the Justice will issue a decision and judgment disposing of the proceeding and forward it to the Motion Support Office, which in turn will deliver it to the County Clerk. As with a judgment in an action, the Clerk will enter it when the prevailing party appears at the Judgment Clerk's desk with the County Clerk's file, which should contain the original signed decision and judgment, together with a bill of costs and disbursements, and a judgment roll will be created.

If there is a decision of the court awarding ultimate equitable relief upon a motion or after non-jury trial, or if a verdict for money is complicated or involves a special verdict, the court will generally direct the prevailing party to submit or settle a judgment. The Justice will sign the judgment, but, if the judgment awards money, interest, costs or disbursements, should leave the relevant spaces blank so that the Judgment Clerk can calculate the interest, tax costs and disbursements, and record a total recovery. The judgment will be transmitted to the County Clerk's Judgment Section.

Except in matrimonial and electronically filed cases, when the Justice signs a judgment, the County Clerk, again, will place it unentered in the file jacket for the case to await the arrival of counsel requesting entry so that interest issues, costs, and disbursements can be addressed, and a judgment roll created.

As noted earlier, a judgment is entered when, after it has been signed by the Clerk, it is filed by him (CPLR 5016 [a]). The fact of entry will be recorded by the Clerk in a judgment book. Distinct from entry is docketing. The latter occurs when the Clerk records the judgment in a docket book, and this makes a money judgment a lien upon the real property of the defendant located in New York County.⁶⁵

⁶⁴ Under some circumstances, the County Clerk may require a proposed judgment to be settled before him.

⁶⁵ Siegel, New York Practice §§ 418, 421.

C. A CAUTIONARY WORD REGARDING UNFILED JUDGMENTS

Because many judgments signed by the court are treated as unfiled judgments and placed in the case file, counsel sometimes conclude erroneously that a signed judgment has been lost. They may then approach the assigned Justice, advise that the original has been lost, and seek execution of a duplicate original of the judgment. This leads to unnecessary work for the Justice and County Clerk staff and produces unwarranted complaints directed at the County Clerk. The County Clerk therefore respectfully requests that Justices sign duplicate original judgments only when asked to do so by the County Clerk. Attorneys who believe that a judgment has been lost should be referred to the County Clerk's staff.

Unfiled judgments are stamped with a notation that clearly identifies them as such and explains that entry requires an appearance at the Judgment Clerk's Desk (Room 141 B) (except in the two categories of case indicated above). Unfiled judgments bearing the notation are included in the Supreme Court Records On-Line Library (Scroll). Counsel who consult Scroll will not make the error described.

CHAPTER 7

IDENTIFICATION OF PAPERS CONSIDERED ON A MOTION

Identification of the papers that were considered on a motion is required in a decision and order in case there is an appeal (CPLR 2219 [a]). Papers found in a case file may sometimes have been submitted in violation of the CPLR or directives of the court and may therefore have been ignored by the court, or, on the other hand, the court may have given permission for the submission of papers beyond those normally presented on a motion and may have considered them. The parties and the Appellate Division need to know what the court relied upon in coming to its decision. Although a directive that an order be settled does provide a means by which the parties can identify the papers presented on the motion, it is too inefficient and burdensome a means to be used for this limited purpose.

Papers can be identified as follows. Each paper is marked on its first page with a number. The numbers are then recorded on the short form order sheet in the spaces provided, as follows: (1) the notice of motion; (2) the affirmation(s) or affidavit(s) in support thereof; (3) the notice of cross-motion (if any); (4) the affirmation(s) or affidavit(s) in support of the cross-motion or in opposition to the main motion; and (5) the reply affirmation(s) or affidavit(s) (if any). Memoranda of law are not enumerated since they do not contain items of fact, nor are exhibits to affidavits or affirmations to be enumerated separately since they are appendages to the affidavits/affirmations.

In electronically-filed cases, each document submitted to the New York State Courts Electronic Filing System (“NYSCEF”) will bear a separate number in the NYSCEF list of documents. The documents can be identified using these numbers.

HOW TO GET QUESTIONS ANSWERED

If, after consulting this Guide, the reader is in doubt as to whether or not a self-executing order or judgment may be used in a particular matter or how such an order or judgment should be framed, the reader may contact the Order Section of the Motion Support Office (Room 119) or the Commercial Division Support Office (Room 148) (in Division cases). In Article 81 (Mental Hygiene Law) matters, orders/judgments must be settled in the Guardianship and Fiduciary Support Office (Room 148) (646-386-3328). The reason for this is that accountings and other aspects of Article 81 cases are unique matters requiring special expertise, e.g., in such things as the schedules needed in a final accounting. Room 148 is the repository of that expertise.

The Order Sections are available to assist Chambers and Court Attorneys in framing self-executing orders or judgments whenever possible, thereby avoiding unnecessary settlement or submission of long-form orders and judgments.

The staff of the County Clerk's Office (Mr. Joseph Antonelli and Mr. Stephen Kubinec, as well as the Judgment Clerks) are also eager to be of assistance, although efficiency requires that staff consult the Order Section in the first instance. Of course, it is better to have a technical problem obviated in advance of execution of an order/judgment than to confront it afterward.

The County Clerk's Office has extensive familiarity with the intricacies of structured judgments. Appendix C to this Guide contains general information on this difficult subject. Those who need more detailed assistance may obtain it from the County Clerk's Office.

A. NOTATION OF FINAL/NON-FINAL DISPOSITIONS

Each motion folder and short form order sheet transmitted by Chambers or the Part to the Motion Support Office (Room 119) must indicate whether or not the decision/order constitutes a final disposition of the case (not of the motion). Boxes have been placed on the motion jacket and on the gray sheet to permit such indication to be made.

It is very important that the disposition boxes on the motion jacket and on the gray sheet be completed on every motion so that when a decision/order constitutes the final disposition of the case an appropriate entry can be made in the CCIS computer removing the matter from the inventory of active cases. Failure to check the appropriate boxes creates confusion and imposes a burden on the Motion Support Office, which is then required to try to determine on its own whether the decision is final or not. If Motion Support mistakenly enters into CCIS that a case has been finally disposed of when that is not so, confusion and inconvenience to the parties will occur later on (e.g., the filing of a note of issue will be made impossible). Conversely, failure to record a final disposition of the case will result in its incorrectly continuing to be listed in the computer system as an active case. Errors of this kind deprive Justices of credit for dispositions and generate erroneous workload statistics. Such errors also cause additional work for our Justices and clerks inasmuch as inventory reviews must be conducted in part to cull out such "dead cases" and a notification and calendar-generating process may accompany these reviews.

B. WHAT IS A "FINAL DISPOSITION" ?

(1) The Basic Rule

Decisions are final only if they dispose of all aspects of the case (except for the question of attorney's fees). Determinations that dispose of some but not all claims, that determine the fate of some but not all parties, and that grant judgments of default, but that will be followed by inquests on damages are not final determinations. As to the last of these situations, an inquest requires the filing of a note of issue, which cannot be done in a case that has been marked disposed on a motion for a default judgment.

(2) Finality in Special Proceedings

Particular attention should be paid to the question of finality in special proceedings. A determination on the merits in a special proceeding, one way or the other, disposes of the matter. So does the withdrawal of the application. A determination in certain "pre-action" special proceedings will dispose of the matter (the special proceeding) even though a lawsuit will follow later. That subsequent lawsuit will proceed under a new index number, which will also require the filing of a new Request for Judicial Intervention. An action is different from a special proceeding. Properly recording the disposition of the special proceeding will prevent the improper use of the special proceeding's index number for the subsequent plenary action and the confusion that that misuse will generate. Applications for the following are common special proceedings the resolution of which will generally constitute a final disposition:

Pre-Action Discovery

Permission to Sue MVAIC

Leave to File Late Notice of Claim

Preserve Police Department Records

Article 78 Proceedings

An exception to this general procedure concerns arbitrations. A special proceeding can be brought to stay or compel arbitration. A decision on either must take the form of a judgment (CPLR 411). If an arbitration will take place, a later application to confirm or disaffirm an arbitration award might be thought to require a second proceeding that would end in a second judgment. So it was held, notwithstanding a contention that CPLR 7502 (a) (iii) was written to avoid that conclusion.⁶⁶ Section 7502 (a) was thereafter revised to overrule the decision in question. Now, even though judgment has been entered in a special proceeding to compel or stay arbitration, a subsequent application, despite CPLR 411, shall be made by motion in the same proceeding. Parties can bring all applications related to an arbitration under the same caption and index number.⁶⁷ For purposes of marking finality, the determination of the initial special proceeding will result in a judgment and should be considered a final disposition.

If the initial application is one to compel arbitration and it is brought in an action (CPLR 7502 [a]), and if the court grants the application, leaving nothing to be tried in court, the matter should be marked final at the time of the initial application. A later application to confirm or disaffirm can be brought in the action even though it has been concluded (CPLR 7502 [a] [iii]).

If an application is not fully decided on the merits, one way or the other (e.g., a framed issue hearing on insurance coverage is directed, or a trial ordered in an Article 78 proceeding), then there has been no final disposition. Decisions of this sort clearly constitute a minority of the special proceedings filed in this court. Each Part normally should have very few special proceedings pending in its inventory after the decision is issued on Motion Sequence No. 001.

(3) Finality in Transferred Cases

The granting of a motion to change venue from New York to some other county, a transfer pursuant to CPLR 325 (d), and the like, result in a final disposition. Although the controversy will continue on its merits, the case is no longer pending in our court and so is considered terminated so far as the records of this county are concerned. The new county or Civil Court will have to enter the case into its computer inventory when it arrives there and a new county will also have to assign it a new Index Number (for which usually no fee will be imposed).

(4) Finality in Article 78 Proceedings --
Administrative Remands and Transfers to the Appellate Division

Whenever the court remands an Article 78 proceeding to an administrative agency, the original application has been resolved and that proceeding is at an end. If the petitioner returns to our court with a grievance, it will concern new administrative facts and therefore require the institution of a new proceeding. In the case of a remand, a gray sheet with opinion will suffice as a short form judgment if the document adjudges that the matter should be remanded. When the court issues an order transferring an Article 78 proceeding to the Appellate Division (CPLR 7804 [g]), the case ceases as far as our county is concerned so the order is a final one.

(5) Finality and Article 81 Matters

Applications for the appointment of a guardian can result in years or even decades of judicial activity. Nevertheless, the purpose of the application is to obtain the appointment, and once that is granted or denied, the proceeding is to be considered disposed; whatever follows will be post-application activity. This will not bar later motions (e.g., to substitute a guardian, to authorize the making of a gift). If this were not the rule, these applications would remain open, out of compliance with standards and goals, possibly for many years.

APPENDIX A

KEY MOTIONS AND APPLICATIONS -- RECOMMENDATIONS REGARDING ORDERS OR JUDGMENTS

APPENDIX A

KEY MOTIONS AND APPLICATIONS -- RECOMMENDATIONS REGARDING ORDERS OR JUDGMENTS

GENERALLY APPLICABLE ADMINISTRATIVE AND CASE MANAGEMENT CONSIDERATIONS

With regard to each of the orders/judgments discussed here, two general procedural considerations should be kept in mind. First, whenever a court office and/or the County Clerk needs to change a caption or take other procedural action regarding a case (e.g., striking a note of issue), the order should include a directive that a copy be served on the relevant office, often the Trial Support Office (Room 158), and/or the County Clerk. Second, orders should generally include deadlines by which attorneys should take the action being directed. Experience shows that if no deadline is set, the case, or at least that aspect directly affected by the order, may languish, even for a considerable time.¹

Orders Affecting the Caption: Specifically, when amendments of pleadings or captions, consolidations, severances of parties, interventions and substitutions of parties produce changes in the caption, the order directing such changes must provide for service of a copy of that order on both the Trial Support Office (Room 158) and the County Clerk so that their records may be altered to reflect the changes. The County Clerk has a database that lists the case caption and our court's computer system, CCIS, has a separate listing of the caption. Trial Support does not receive copies of decisions in the normal course of operations and therefore will be unaware of an order to change a caption unless a party brings it to the Office. The County Clerk of course receives all decisions, but does not have the time to read them in order to locate those that affect the caption (see CPLR 8019[c]). Because of complexities that affect the entire state, the County Clerk's computer does not communicate with the court's CCIS system. That is why an order affecting the caption must contain a provision directing service upon both Trial Support and the County Clerk.

Orders Affecting Trial Status: Similarly, whenever an order changes the trial status of a case (e.g., granting a preference, restoring the case to the trial calendar, striking the note of issue) there should be a direction in the order requiring service on the Trial Support Office (Room 158). This is the office that administers the trial calendar and a case will sit in its chronologically-allotted spot on that calendar (or on the City Cases Waiting List) until someone alerts Trial Support that there is a reason to move the case to a different position.

A. AMEND PLEADINGS, MOTION TO:

Recommendation: Use order (no settlement of an order is required) if the proposed amended pleading is part of the moving papers before the court. The order should provide that the amended pleading in the proposed form annexed to the moving papers be deemed served upon service of "a copy of this order" with notice of entry on all parties appearing. If the proposed amended pleading is not annexed, counsel should be directed to serve and file the proposed amended pleading within a prescribed time, together with a copy of the order with notice of entry. If the amended pleading requires a responsive pleading (i.e., a complaint or an answer containing counter claims and/or cross claims [see CPLR 3011]), it is recommended that the court direct that a responsive pleading be served within 20 days of service of a copy of the order with notice of entry (CPLR 3012 [a]).

B. ARBITRATION AWARD, APPLICATION TO CONFIRM:

A judgment is required (CPLR 411). Settlement can be avoided by inserting in the short form judgment the following: (1) that the application is granted (or denied) and the award of the arbitrator is confirmed (or disaffirmed); (2) the precise elements of the award (e.g., the sum to be recovered, by whom, with interest of X% from a stated date expressed as the judgment of the court (using the words "It is ADJUDGED, etc.")).

C. ARBITRATION (COMMERCIAL), APPLICATION TO STAY:

Application granted or denied -- Recommendation: Use short form judgment (no settlement of a judgment is required). It should direct that arbitration be permanently stayed or that the parties proceed to arbitration and that a copy be served on the arbitral tribunal.

D. ARBITRATION (UNINSURED MOTORIST), APPLICATION TO STAY:

1. Where a preliminary trial (framed issue) is directed -- Recommendation: Use short form order (no settlement of an order required). It is sufficient in the short form order to stay the arbitration temporarily and direct the Clerk of the Trial Support Office, upon service of a copy of the order with notice of entry within a stated deadline, to set the issue down for preliminary trial upon the filing of a note of issue and statement of readiness and the payment of appropriate fees. Since a directive for a temporary stay does not finally resolve the merits of the proceeding, the directive should take the form of an order, not a judgment; the judgment should follow the hearing. A framed issue cannot be tried without a calendar number (note of issue and certificate of readiness).

2. Where a permanent stay of arbitration is granted or denied -- Recommendation: Use short form judgment (no settlement of a judgment is required). The short form judgment should provide either that the arbitration is permanently stayed or that the parties are directed to proceed to arbitration. Further, the judgment should provide for service of a copy on the arbitral tribunal.

E. ARTICLE 78 PROCEEDINGS:

1. Application denied -- Recommendation: Use short form judgment (no settlement of a judgment is required). The short form judgment should merely provide that the petition is denied and the proceeding dismissed.

2. Application granted -- Recommendation: Use short form judgment (no settlement of a judgment is required). As noted in Part I of the Guide, the court cannot issue an order directing the Clerk to enter judgment where mandatory relief is being awarded, such as reinstatement of an employee. The short form judgment should provide that the petition is granted, and spell out all the details that the application necessitates.

3. Remand to the agency or transfer of the proceeding to the Appellate Division: Recommendation: Use short form judgment in the former instance (no settlement of a judgment is required). A judgment is required in the former instance because a remand disposes of the application. With a transfer to the Appellate Division, the matter has ended as far as our court is concerned, but the merits obviously remain open so an order must be used (CPLR 7804 [g]).

4. Hearing or Other Interim Steps: An order should be issued in an Article 78 proceeding where the court wishes to direct a hearing or require that other interim steps be taken.

5. Costs and Disbursements: Consideration should be given to whether costs and disbursements should or should not be awarded. When it is the intention of the court to grant costs and disbursements in an Article 78 proceeding, an adjudication should be included in the judgment that costs and disbursements be recovered (e.g., "it is ADJUDGED that the petition is denied and the proceeding is dismissed and that respondent do recover of petitioner X costs in the amount of $ _____ and disbursements in the amount of $ _____, for a total of $ _____ [to be filled in by the County Clerk]”).

F. ASSESSMENT OF DAMAGES (INQUEST):

Recommendation: Use short form order (no settlement of an order is required). The order sheet should direct the Clerk of the Trial Support Office (Room 158) to place the matter on the appropriate trial calendar for an assessment upon service of a copy of the order with notice of entry, the filing of a note of issue and statement of readiness, and the payment of appropriate fees, if any, all within a stated deadline.

G. ATTACHMENT, MOTION FOR:

1. Settlement of an order is preferable when the motion is granted so that the details of the property to be attached may be set forth clearly and provision may be made for an undertaking, which is mandatory (CPLR 6212 [b]).
2. Confirmation of an attachment does not require settlement of an order.

H. CAPTION, ORDERS AFFECTING THE:

See Generally Applicable Administrative and Case Management Considerations at the outset of this Appendix.

I. CLASS ACTION (CPLR ARTICLE 9), MOTION TO CERTIFY:

A determination declining to certify a class can be made using a short form order. A decision on a motion certifying a class action, however, should always provide for settlement of an order that will spell out technicalities of notice, define the class precisely, etc. (CPLR 902-04, 907).

J. CONSOLIDATION OR JOINT TRIAL, MOTION FOR:

1. Motion denied -- Recommendation: Use short form order (no settlement of an order is required).
2. Motion granted -- Recommendation: Use short form order (no settlement of an order is required). The language contained in the related form in Appendix B must be incorporated in the order that directs consolidation. In employing the specific directives, attention should be paid to whether both or all the cases being consolidated are pending in this court or whether one or more are located elsewhere. In the latter case, different Clerks must be given directives. Forms are to be found in the Appendix covering both situations. Care must also be taken to distinguish consolidation from joint trial, something not always done by counsel in motion papers. The former results in one case, one index number, one note of issue, one verdict, one judgment, and one bill of costs. In the latter, although cases will be tried together, each case continues to have a separate existence, and a separate index number, note of issue, verdict, judgment, and bill of costs will be required for each.² Although both consolidation and joint trial are dealt with in CPLR 602, which is imprecisely captioned “Consolidation,” it would be an error for the court to issue an order directing that cases be “consolidated for joint trial.” Distinct from consolidation or joint trial is pretrial coordination of related litigation initiated in two or more judicial districts and transferred here pursuant to order of the Litigation Coordinating Panel of New York State (see Uniform Rule 202.69).

It is usual for the Justice to determine in the order of consolidation who has the right to open and close when separate actions are consolidated involving different plaintiffs. The rule is that the right generally belongs to the plaintiff whose action was commenced first regardless of the court in which that action was begun. If more than two actions are consolidated, the plaintiffs will normally be given the right to open and close in the order in which the cases were initiated. When the court orders a joint trial, the order may leave to the trial Justice the determination as to who opens and closes,³ although if the Justice issuing the order will be trying the case or if it otherwise seems appropriate, the Justice may resolve that matter in the order (as is done in the relevant form included in Appendix B).

K. CONTEMPT, MOTION TO PUNISH FOR:

Direct settlement of an order. This is an order that may have severe consequences and that is also technical, requiring provisions such as purging of the contempt, damages, penalties, and the like.

² David D. Siegel, New York Practice § 127, at 220 (4th ed. 2005)[hereinafter cited as “Siegel, New York Practice”].

³ Id. § 128, at 222.

L. COSTS, MOTION FOR:

Part 130 of the Rules of the Chief Administrator empowers the court to award costs to a party or attorney who is the victim of frivolous conduct by the other side and/or to impose sanctions upon the wrongdoer. The Part also allows for an award or sanctions when an attorney, without good cause, fails to appear in court as scheduled. In the former situation, the costs and/or sanctions can be imposed upon the party or the attorney for the party or both. Frivolous conduct is defined in Section 130-1.1 (c). Costs are to be paid to the affected party as reimbursement for expenses that should not have been incurred. Sanctions are a penalty for improper conduct. Sanctions are to be paid to the Commissioner of Taxation and Finance when paid by a party or the Lawyers' Fund for Client Protection when paid by an attorney. Costs or sanctions may be awarded upon motion or on the court's own initiative provided that reasonable opportunity to be heard is provided. A written decision is required or, in the case of a failure of counsel to appear, a statement on the record. The court must set forth the conduct on which the award is based and the reasons why the conduct was frivolous or the failure to appear was without good cause. In the case of a frivolity award, the decision must state why the court found the amount of the costs or sanctions appropriate. See also CPLR 8303-a.

M. DECLARATORY JUDGMENT ACTION:

Recommendation: Use short form judgment where declaration is to be made and it is clear to the court how the declaration should be framed (no settlement is required). If a decision on the merits is made, a declaration one way or the other is required; it is not enough to state that a motion for summary judgment is granted or denied. Thus, if the court reaches the merits, whether it accepts or rejects the declaration proffered by the movant, it is obligated to make an appropriate declaration of the rights at issue unless the court, in the exercise of its discretion, declines to grant a declaratory judgment because to do so would be substantively unfounded (e.g., because there exists a recognized form of action in which the rights of the parties can be determined, or there is no justiciable controversy, in which cases the claim will be dismissed without a declaration). To the extent that a dispositive declaration is made, the document must be a judgment, or, if it also contains ordering language, an order and judgment. For example, a motion for summary judgment might result in a decision that denies the motion as to a cause of action for money damages, but decides another for declaratory relief; an order and judgment would be required..

N. DEFAULT, MOTION TO VACATE:

Motion granted or denied -- Recommendation: No long form order is required in either case. If vacatur is granted and the defaulting party must serve an opposing pleading, the order should so provide and should include a deadline for doing so.

O. DISCOVERY, DISMISSAL (CPLR 3126):

One of the sanctions authorized by CPLR 3126 (3) for discovery non-compliance that sinks to the level of willful, contumacious or bad faith failure to disclose or violation of court orders is dismissal of the complaint. Prior to 2008, if an action was timely commenced and was terminated by, inter alia, a dismissal of the complaint for neglect to prosecute, the plaintiff was not allowed by CPLR 205 (a) the six months to commence a new action upon the same transaction or occurrences if the statute of limitations had run. This remains the law, but with an important qualification. In 2008, Section 205 was amended by the addition of the following provision: “Where a dismissal is one for neglect to prosecute the action made pursuant to rule thirty-two hundred sixteen of this chapter or otherwise, the judge shall set forth on the record the specific conduct constituting the neglect, which conduct shall demonstrate a general pattern of delay in proceeding with the litigation.” The inclusion of the words “or otherwise” means that any form of dismissal for neglect to prosecute, not just one under CPLR 3216, would be covered by this provision.⁴ That would include a dismissal under CPLR 3126.⁵ An action that is dismissed for egregious discovery inaction and violations by the plaintiff amounting to willful, contumacious, or bad faith conduct and that would be time-barred otherwise may be recommenced if the court does not make on the record the recitations required by this amendment to Section 205 (a). Therefore, if the court’s intention is to preclude the recommencement of the dismissed matter, the court should include in its order a specification of the conduct of the plaintiff amounting to neglect, which should, of course, overlap with the actions and inactions needed to support a finding of willful, contumacious, or bad faith conduct, and should state that this conduct demonstrates a general pattern of delay.

⁴ Siegel, New York Practice § 52 (Supp. 2010).

⁵ See Andrea v. Arnone, 5 NY3d 514, 806 NYS2d 453 (2005).

P. DISMISS, MOTION TO:

1. Motion denied -- Recommendation: Use short form order (no settlement of an order is required). The order should include a directive to the defendant to serve and file an answer to the complaint (or the plaintiff in the case of a counterclaim, etc.) within 10 days from service of a copy of the order with notice of entry to remind the movant of its obligations under CPLR 3211(f).

2. Motion granted - Recommendation: Use short form order (no settlement of an order is required). The order should clearly direct the Clerk to enter judgment dismissing the action or claims if the court wishes the Clerk to enter a judgment at this point. If the dismissal is partial -- as to fewer than all parties or claims -- care must be taken to specify just what is being dismissed and what is not, and to sever the claims or parties that will remain. If no party is being released from the case, the court may wish to consider whether entry of a judgment should be directed. If a party is being released, the court should direct severance and entry of judgment with regard thereto. If leave to replead is granted, settlement is unnecessary, but the order should provide when the new pleading must be served.

Q. LATE NOTICE OF CLAIM, APPLICATION FOR LEAVE TO SERVE A:

1. Application denied -- Recommendation: Use short form judgment (no settlement of a judgment is required).

2. Application granted -- Recommendation: Use short form judgment (no settlement of a judgment is required). The judgment should provide that the notice of claim in the proposed form annexed to the moving papers is deemed timely served upon service of a copy of such judgment, with notice of entry, on the respondent or agency involved.

R. MENTAL HYGIENE ARTICLE 81 GUARDIANSHIP APPLICATION:

Recommendation: A long form judgment for the appointment of a guardian containing details tailored to the circumstances and in compliance with Article 81 is required. The court has developed a standard form that the Justice may complete or may direct the applicant to complete and submit. This form is included in the Forms in Appendix B and is available on our court's website (www.nycourts.gov/supctmanh) together with other Article 81 forms. If the proceeding seeks the appointment of a guardian, the grant or denial of the application disposes of the case and requires a judgment, although a guardianship, if created, can endure for a considerable period. Other motions within the case (e.g., for authorization to make a gift) would require an order, not a judgment. If an application to appoint a guardian is denied, the court can issue a short form judgment.

S. PENDENTE LITE RELIEF, ENFORCEMENT, AND MODIFICATION (IN MATRIMONIAL PROCEEDINGS), MOTION FOR:

1. Motion denied -- Recommendation: Use short form order (no settlement of an order is required).
2. Motion granted -- Recommendation: Use short form order (no settlement of an order is required). Whether interim maintenance, child support, exclusive occupancy of the marital residence, custody, injunctive relief, counsel's fees, accountant's fees, appraiser's fees, or similar relief is sought, the court may grant such relief as it deems appropriate in a short form order. This is so whether the relief sought is pursued exclusively by the moving party or whether relief is sought in a cross-motion. Similarly, a subsequent motion for enforcement of relief granted and a cross-motion for modification or vice versa (i.e., a motion for modification and a cross-motion for enforcement) should be resolved in a short form order. Often, time is of the essence in providing such relief.

T. PREFERENCE, MOTION FOR A:

Recommendation: Use short form order (no settlement of an order is required). The order should direct that service of a copy of the order with notice of entry be made on the Trial Support Office (Room 158), which administers the trial calendar. See Generally Applicable Administrative and Case Management Considerations at the outset of this Appendix. A motion for a preference is to be made with or after the filing of the note of issue (CPLR 3403 [b]).

U. PRELIMINARY INJUNCTIVE RELIEF, MOTION FOR:

1. Motion denied -- Recommendation: Use short form order (no settlement of an order is required). If an expedited trial is ordered, the court may wish to consider including a directive for a conference so that a schedule for disclosure can be arrived at promptly. Such a directive is advisable in all cases where the preliminary conference has not already been held or scheduled.
2. Motion granted -- Settlement of a preliminary injunction order will often be required so that the details of the relief can be set forth accurately and fully and account can be taken of the requirement (CPLR 6312 [b]) for an undertaking prior to the granting of a preliminary injunction. If, however, these details can easily and accurately be set out by the court immediately in a short form order by incorporating the standard language contained in the relevant form in Appendix B, a short form order would be appropriate since, although a TRO may have been granted or can be issued in the interim, expeditious action is obviously often needed in these cases.

V. PROTECTION, ORDER OF (IN MATRIMONIAL PROCEEDINGS):

Domestic Relations Law §§ 240 and 252 authorize orders of protection in appropriate circumstances. Expedition is always a critical consideration when orders of protection are at issue. Also, it is important that the orders be clear and unmistakable, especially to police officers who may be called upon to enforce them. Furthermore, in 1995, the Legislature established a Registry of Orders of Protection for all such orders issued in New York State, and in 1996 the penalty for violation of such orders was increased and other changes were made. Accordingly, Justices should now employ the standard form orders of protection that are included in the Forms in Appendix B, which were recently updated. If these forms are not utilized, the incorporation of data into the Registry will be imperiled since the forms are formatted to be read by computer at the Registry. Certain data collection forms must accompany the orders. For more information on this vital subject, consult the court's Operations Manual.

W. REARGUMENT/RENEWAL, MOTION FOR:

No settlement of an order is required in most cases. However, such a motion might result in a complex order if reargument or renewal is granted depending upon the nature of the underlying order.

X. RECEIVER, MOTION FOR APPOINTMENT OF A:

Always direct settlement of an order when the motion is granted as the powers of the receiver need to be spelled out and provision needs to be made for the posting of a surety bond or undertaking. Settlement is unnecessary, however, if a mortgagor attaches a proposed order as part of the motion and there is no opposition or the motion is authorized to be made ex parte. In this event, the proposed receiver might be consulted for any changes or additions that the receiver may need.

Y. REFEREE'S REPORT, MOTION TO CONFIRM/DISAFFIRM:

No settlement of an order is generally required. Upon deciding such a motion, the court should address the underlying motion that was held in abeyance pending the reference to hear and report unless it is mooted by the reference.

Z. REFERENCES TO A SPECIAL REFEREE:

Recommendation: Standard form orders have been developed for a reference to hear and report and a reference to hear and determine. These forms, which are included in Appendix B, contain various provisions designed to meet statutory requirements and to ensure efficiency in the processing of these matters. It is recommended that these forms be used.

The power of the court to order references to determine is limited (e.g., on a long account), although the parties, on their own (or with a little encouragement from the court), may stipulate to have a reference determine many issues (CPLR 4317). In such cases, the order or judgment is signed by the referee and appeal therefrom goes to the Appellate Division.

To expedite proceedings and allow the Special Referee Clerk to calendar the matter at an early date for an appearance in the Special Referee Part for assignment to a Referee, the "Reference" box on the bottom of the gray sheet should be checked by Chambers whenever a reference is being directed.

AA. RESETTLE ORDER, MOTION TO:

1. Motion denied -- Recommendation: Use short form order (no settlement of an order is required).
2. Motion granted -- Recommendation: An order can be settled, but it is not critical that that be done. A form of order is included in Appendix B. The order to be settled must recite that the motion is granted and that "the order dated _____ and entered on _____ [the prior order] is resettled to read as follows," after which the entire prior order, heading and caption included, is set out verbatim and unchanged except for that aspect of said order that precipitated the granting of the motion.

BB. RESTORATION OF CASE TO THE TRIAL CALENDAR A case may be "marked off" or stricken from the trial calendar or unanswered on a clerk's calendar call (CPLR 3404). Such an action, if not restored within one year thereafter, is deemed abandoned and shall be dismissed without costs for neglect to prosecute. The clerk is directed by the Rule to make an appropriate entry without need for an order.⁶ Rule 3404 cannot be used to mark a case off “the calendar” prior to the filing of a note of issue since the Rule is addressed only to cases that have reached the trial calendar (i.e., in which a note of issue has been filed) and there is, in any event, no pre-note calendar from which the case may be marked off.⁷ If a case is marked off the trial calendar pursuant Rule 3404 it may be restored upon an adequate showing of an excuse for its failure to proceed, that the case is a meritorious one, and, according to various cases, that the defendant has not been prejudiced.⁸ If no such motion is made and the action is deemed dismissed, it appears that the plaintiff, if the statute of limitations has run, can nevertheless commence a new action within six months pursuant to CPLR 205(a). An action will typically be marked off without formal judicial action and thus there will be no occasion for the court to set forth the specific finding of a general pattern of delay required by CPLR 205(a).

CC. SANCTIONS, MOTION FOR:

See COSTS, MOTION FOR.

DD. SEALING ORDER, MOTION FOR:

1. Motion denied -- Recommendation: Use short form order (no settlement of an order is required).
2. Motion granted -- Recommendation: Use short form order (no settlement of an order is required). A sealing order should be an order separate from other orders. If a motion seeks a multiplicity of relief, the court should issue two orders: one directed to the sealing aspect and one to the balance of the motion. The order should state that a copy is to be served on the County Clerk. A deadline for such service should be provided since the file will remain open until that is done. If the situation presented is serious enough, the court should have the sealing order “walked through,” that is, the court officer or other appropriate person should carry the file from Chambers to the Motion Support Office (Room 119) for immediate entry in the computer and then carry it to the County Clerk (Law and Equity [Room 141B]), who must be alerted to the existence of the sealing order. Unless the order is brought to the attention of County Clerk staff, the file will go unsealed. The order must also identify persons who may have access to the file despite the sealing, usually the parties, their counsel and persons authorized by those attorneys in writing (e.g., paralegals). Otherwise, the County Clerk will allow no one to inspect the file without a court order. The order must, of course, comply with Part 216 of the Uniform Rules for the Trial Courts.

⁶ See Okun v. Tanners, 11 NY3d 762, 867 NYS2d 25 (2008).

⁷ See Walker v. City of New York, 46 AD3d 278, 847 NYS2d 173 (1st Dept 2007); Lopez v. Imperial Delivery Service Inc., 282 AD2d 190, 725 NYS2d 57 (2d Dept 2001); Johnson v. Sam Minskoff & Sons, 287 AD2d 233, 735 NYS2d 503 (1st Dept 2001).

⁸ Siegel, New York Practice § 376, at 632.

EE. SECURITY FOR COSTS, MOTION FOR:

Recommendation: Use short form order (no settlement of an order is required). The order should direct payment into court of the sum required (usually $500, the maximum in New York City, except where otherwise specifically ordered by the court [CPLR 8503]) to be applied to the payment of costs, if any, awarded against the plaintiff, or the posting with the Clerk of an undertaking as security for costs, to be done within 30 days from the date of the order. Payment to the County Clerk must be made in cash, by credit card (Mastercard or Visa), certified check, or bank check; the checks should be payable to the New York County Clerk. The order should also direct that all further proceedings except to review the order be stayed pending compliance (CPLR 8501-8502).

FF. SEIZURE OF CHATTEL (ARTICLE 71), MOTION FOR:

Recommendation: Since this is a technical order and an undertaking is mandatory (CPLR 7102 [e]), it is best that the settlement of an order be directed. Nevertheless, Appendix B contains a form that may provide guidance.

GG. SEVER, MOTION TO:

Recommendation: Whether granted or denied, use short form order (no settlement of an order is required). If the motion is granted, the short form order should provide for service of a copy with notice of entry upon the Clerk and the Trial Support Office (Room 158). See Generally Applicable Administrative and Case Management Procedures at the outset of this Appendix.

HH. SUMMARY JUDGMENT (CPLR 3212 AND 3213), MOTION FOR:

I. Motion denied -- Recommendation: Use short form order (no settlement of an order is required). Note that if a motion made pursuant to CPLR 3213 is denied, the moving and answering papers are deemed the complaint and answer, respectively, unless the court directs the service of formal pleadings. CPLR 3213. If the court so directs, a deadline for service should be included.

2. Motion granted -- Recommendation: Generally use short form order, except in foreclosure cases. If a money judgment is being awarded, the Justice should direct in the ordering language that the Clerk enter judgment in favor of the movant in a stated amount and, if appropriate, with pre-decision interest at a rate and from a date set by the court in the order (CPLR 5001), plus costs and disbursements. If the motion is granted as to some parties only or in part (e.g., as to some but not all causes of action), the court will need to determine whether a judgment should be entered or not. If no party is being released from the case by the decision, then a judgment may not be appropriate. See the discussion of this topic in Part I of the Guide. If the Court concludes that it makes sense and advances justice for a judgment to be entered at this point, a clear statement will be required of the court indicating which portions of the case have been resolved and which not, and in favor of which parties and against which other parties, and a clear direction provided to the Clerk as to exactly what judgment he is to enter with respect to each claim and party. Where a judgment is to be entered on a claim or claims, but one or more remain, language is required severing the claims resolved from those remaining (CPLR 3212 [e]).

II. VENUE, MOTION TO CHANGE:

1. Motion denied -- Recommendation: Use short form order (no settlement of an order is required).

2. Motion granted -- Recommendation: Use short form order (no settlement of an order is required). The order should direct the Clerk to transfer the papers on file to the Clerk of the transferee court after service of a certified copy of the order and payment of appropriate fees. Sometimes the change of venue will involve the transfer of a case out of our court to another court. Other times the transfer will be from another court to our court. Appendix B contains forms covering both situations.

JJ. WITHDRAW AS ATTORNEY, MOTION TO:

Recommendation: Use short form order (no settlement of an order is required). The order should provide for a stay of proceedings to comply with the notice provisions of CPLR 321. Consideration should be given as to whether a mechanism to resolve promptly a retaining lien issue (e.g., a provision for a bond) is required by the circumstances.

APPENDIX C

STRUCTURED JUDGMENTS

APPENDIX C STRUCTURED JUDGMENTS - - (CPLR ARTICLES 50-A AND 50-B)

EXPLANATION AND INSTRUCTIONS

Structured judgments, those issued under Articles 50-A and 50-B of the CPLR, are a subject of extraordinary, indeed, byzantine, complexity. The court should certainly direct settlement of any such judgment in a case covered by either Article rather than attempt to craft a judgment on its own in the first instance. A proposed judgment and any proposed counter-judgment should be submitted directly to the Part or Chambers. Because of the complexity inherent in these judgments, attorneys often make errors in drafting them and these judgments thus present a significant challenge for Chambers. The following information and forms are provided with the goal of rendering this subject less obscure and permitting Chambers to identify, and correct as appropriate, defective proposed structured judgments or counter-judgments.

In addition, Chambers should be aware that the County Clerk's Office has extensive familiarity with structured judgments. If doubts or questions arise about proposed judgments of this type, Chambers can find assistance by contacting Joseph Antonelli, Clerk-in-Charge, or Stephen Kubinec, Deputy Clerk-in-Charge, of the Law and Equity section of the County Clerk's Office (Room 141B).

It is necessary, for reasons which will become apparent, to delve into some history. The law regarding structured judgments was introduced in the 1980's as part of reforms addressed to perceived problems in the medical malpractice field, including soaring insurance rates. In 1985, Article 50-A was enacted covering medical, dental and, later, podiatric malpractice actions. In brief, Article 50-A required that future damages be paid over time. Periodic payment of judgments in actions for personal injury, injury to property, and wrongful death might have been (should have been), but were not, included in Article 50-A. Instead, in 1986, Article 50-B was enacted for that purpose. The two articles were substantially similar. Over the years, various lacunae and other problems in these statutes became evident and these were worthy of remedy. Important changes to this regime were enacted in 2003 in response to a decision of the Court of Appeals¹

¹ Desiderio v. Ochs, 100 NY2d 159, 761 NYS2d 576 (2003). Also, in 2002, a Structured Settlement Protection Act (G.O.L. § 5-1701 et. seq.) was enacted to provide greater protection to individuals entering into a structured settlement agreement or negotiating to sell or transfer a periodic payment thereunder.

Unfortunately, this development resulted in even greater complexity. Two overlapping statutes that really should have originally been one were now not consolidated into one, but rather transformed into two non-uniform ones: Article 50-B was not changed, but 50-A was altered dramatically.²

As a consequence of this history, the court may face the structured judgment problem in three different, headache-inducing contexts:

- (i) Art. 50-A in its pre-2003 form must be applied to any medical, dental, or podiatric malpractice action that was commenced prior to July 26, 2003.³
- (ii) The current version of Art. 50-A must be applied to any medical, dental, or podiatric malpractice action, including any action for malpractice wrongful death, commenced on or after July 26, 2003.
- (iii) Art. 50-B (again, unchanged in 2003) must be applied to actions for personal injury, injury to property, and wrongful death in general.

Since, we trust, almost all the judgments that will be presented to the court in medical, dental or podiatric malpractice actions (hereinafter referred to as “medical malpractice actions”) in 2010 and thereafter should arise in actions that were commenced on or after the effective date of new Art. 50-A, our discussion will concern the current version of the statute. That version resolved some of the problems that had plagued the original Art. 50-A.⁴ The current Art. 50-A, however, is, unfortunately, even more complicated than its predecessor and is characterized by a commentator as “general anesthesia” for the mind.⁵ In order to avoid the formidable difficulties otherwise presented, parties may stipulate to terms different from those set forth in the statute. For the same reason, the court will not want to discourage such settlements.⁶

PREPARING A JUDGMENT UNDER CURRENT ARTICLE 50-A

1. Adjusting the Verdict

If a judgment is presented in a case under current Art. 50-A, the court will apply to the findings of past and future damages any applicable rules regarding additurs and/or remittiturs and adjust the verdict accordingly (CPLR 5031[a]). Note that CPLR 4111 regarding elements of the verdict provides for findings required for 50-A (and 50-B) calculations.

2. Setting Forth Lump Sum Amounts

Next, pursuant to subparagraph (b) of Section 5031, the judgment shall set forth lump sum amounts as specified in the jury verdict for all past damages, all damages for future loss of services, all damages for future loss of consortium, all damages in medical malpractice wrongful death cases, and damages for future pain and suffering of $500,000 or less. In any case in which all damages are to be paid in lump sums, the judgment shall be entered on the total, without other regard to Section 5031.

3. What the Remainder of Section 5031 Applies To

The remainder of Section 5031 will be applied to (i) all malpractice cases (wrongful death excluded) in which findings have been made of future economic and pecuniary damage, and (ii) any case in which there is an award of pain and suffering over $500,000. The Section reaches a far broader array of cases than its predecessor because, unlike the prior statute, it applies to the former class of cases.

4. Calculating Pain and Suffering Damages for the Judgment

Pursuant to CPLR 5031(c), as to a pain and suffering award in excess of $500,000, the judgment should provide for a lump sum payment of the greater of 35% of such damages or $500,000. The balance of the award for this form of damages shall be paid in a stream of future payments, arrived at by dividing the remaining damages by the number of years found by the jury or by eight years, whichever is less. This yields a figure that constitutes the periodic payment for the first year. The payments for the following years are determined by adding 4% to the prior year's payment. Then, the present value of the stream of payments is calculated by applying a discount rate to the stream of payments. The discount rate is based upon U.S. Treasury Bond rates (see Section 5031[e]).⁷ This process may require professional assistance or the aid of reliable computer software.

⁶ Id. at 601-02. This is so even though the new Art. 50-A omitted a provision that had appeared in its predecessor (CPLR 5031[f]) that the court could enter judgment on consent for future damages without regard to provisions of Art. 50-A. This omission was made presumably through inadvertence or because the language was considered unnecessary (generally, litigants can chart their own course), rather than because of any legislative intent to bar such settlements. Id. at 602. No legislature would be so cruel to litigants, attorneys, County Clerks and their staff, Judges, and court staff.

5. Calculating Covered Future Economic and Pecuniary Damages for the Judgments

The judgment must include future payment streams for future economic and pecuniary damages (except for those in malpractice wrongful death cases) based upon the jury's findings (Section 5031[d]). For each type of damages, the growth rate is applied to the annual amount in current dollars for the period of years, as determined by the jury. It appears that the annual amount in current dollars is used for the first year's payment.⁸ Then the annual growth rate percentage is applied to that figure to yield the second year's payment, and that process is repeated for each succeeding year. Next, the present value of the stream of payments for each type of damages will be determined by application of the discount rate. Thus far, the calculation resembles that in Item 4.

Thirty-five percent of the present value shall be paid as a lump sum. The streams of payments shall be proportionately reduced. These amounts will be paid over time as explained below.

6. Adjustments for Attorney's Fees And the Like

Deductions shall be made from the lump sums and the present values of payment streams previously determined (Section 5031[f]). Any set-offs for comparative negligence and settlements (CPLR Arts. 14-A and 16 and GOL § 15-108) shall be deducted proportionately and thereafter the streams and their present values shall be adjusted accordingly. The same process must be followed for litigation expenses and attorneys' fees, which are to be paid in lump sums. As to attorneys' fees, see Judiciary Law § 474-a. In calculating the fee, consideration has to be given to the lump sums of damages recovered and the payment streams of damages, and the present values of those streams should presumably be used in the calculation.⁹ The fees are to be deducted proportionately from each item of the remaining damages awards and thereafter the streams of payments and their present value shall be adjusted accordingly. Section 5031(f)(3).

⁷ As to a potential problem in the calculation for lengthy payment streams, see Gleason, at 606-07.

⁸ Gleason, at 604.

Liens not the subject of a separate award shall next be deducted proportionately from each item of the remaining damages awards and the streams and their present value again adjusted accordingly. Section 5031(f)(4).

Subdivision (g) requires the defendants and their insurance carriers to offer and guarantee the purchase and payment of an annuity contract to make annual payments in equal monthly installments of the payment streams as adjusted (that is, after the deductions and adjustments described above). The payments shall run from the date of the verdict (unless the verdict specifies otherwise) for the period of time decided upon by the jury (except for the streams for future pain and suffering, which shall not exceed eight years), or the life of the plaintiff, whichever is shorter. Awards for lost earnings, however, shall be paid for the full term of the awards as decided by the jury; payments for economic or pecuniary damages found to be permanent shall continue for the plaintiff's life.

Judgment shall be entered on the lump sum payments and the present value of the payment streams. Subdivision (h).

7. Some Remaining
Complicated Questions

Despite the level of detail in Article 50-A, there appear to remain some uncertainties. These have to do with the possible jury determination of the present value of lump sum awards for future damages for malpractice wrongful death, loss of consortium, and loss of services, as well as the lump sum portion of damages for future pain and suffering.¹⁰

⁹ Gleason, at 605.

¹⁰ These issues are extremely complicated. For an explanation, see Gleason, at 607-12.

PREPARING A JUDGMENT UNDER ARTICLE 50-B

As noted, the 2003 amendments radically altered Article 50-A and the related provisions of CPLR 4111, but left 50-B and the related 4111 provisions unchanged. Certain problems that had been identified in the structured judgment regime prior to 2003 and that had not been resolved by judicial decision continue to afflict Article 50-B. Attorneys may wish to agree to apply the new 50-A answers to these problems in 50-B cases (e.g., when it comes to determining what discount rate to use), or settle on other terms that avoid the problems..

As with Article 50-A, Article 50-B requires that damages, here in personal injury, property damage, and wrongful death actions (other than medical, dental, or podiatric malpractice actions and malpractice wrongful death actions) be divided into past and future damages, with the latter to be paid over time. Sections 5041 and 4111 provide the basic procedures to be followed in this process. Note that the jury is to be instructed not to reduce damages to present value, that calculation being left to the court (CPLR 4111[f]).

1. Adjusting the Verdict

Section 5041(a) requires that, in determining past and future damages, the judgment shall adjust the jury findings for comparative negligence, set-offs, credits, and other applicable rules of law.

2. Calculating a Lump Sum for Certain Damages

Next, the judgment shall provide for payment in a lump sum of the adjusted past damages, future damages of $250,000 or less, and certain other damages, fees and costs (Section 5041[b]). Specifically, litigation expenses, attorney's fees related to past damages, and attorney's fees related to the portion of future damages payable in a lump sum are to be paid in a lump sum. So, too, is the portion of counsel fees related to the future damages that are to be paid over time; this figure is to be calculated based on the present value of the annuity contract (CPLR 5041[c]).

The calculation of attorney's fees presents one of the problems identified in Article 50-B. To determine the fees, the judgment must calculate the amount of future damages to be structured, but to determine the amount to be structured, the judgment must first reflect the amount of the fees.¹¹ Also, the fees need to be calculated on the discounted future payment stream in order to avoid overcompensation.

The solution to these problems is to calculate the present value of the payment stream, figure the fees attributable thereto, and calculate the fees that are to be paid as a lump sum. After all lump sums, including that one, are deducted, the judgment should then recalculate the future payment stream as contemplated by Section 5041(e).¹²

3. Calculating the Annuity Contract

After the judgment has provided for payment of the various lump sums required, it must provide for payment of the future damages over time by means of the annuity contract. The judgment should provide for the award of the present value of a contract that will provide a future payment stream for future damages in excess of $250,000.

Section 5041(e) states that present value is to be determined in accordance with generally accepted actuarial practices by applying the discount rate in effect at the time of the award to the full amount of the remaining future damages. Article 50-B does not identify a particular discount rate and so disputes ensued.¹³ As noted, parties now should probably use the Article 50-A rate.

The statute does not specifically address this, but the jury may have found that some forms of future damages may be payable over different periods of time. The jury determines the periods of time except that CPLR 5041(e) provides that the period of time for future pain and suffering damages shall be the lesser of ten years or the period fixed by the jury.

For each item of future damages, a first year's payment should be calculated. The payment for each year thereafter is arrived at by adding 4% to the payment of the year before (CPLR 5041[e]). The present value of each payment stream is computed next. The attorney's fee attributable to the future damages must be deducted for payment as a lump sum, as explained above, and the future damages adjusted and recalculated. Unless otherwise agreed, the
